ALADDIN'S LAMP

BY SAMUEL B. PETTINGILL

Democratic Representative in Congress for the Third Indiana District 1935-1938.

"By their fruits ye shall know them." American free enterprise is doing infinitely more good to more people than all charitable organizations and governments put together, including the social welfare workers. It does that and in addition supports all charity, all education, all churches, and all government as part of the day's work.

In tens of thousands of shops, mines, offices, farms, laboratories, the lamps of Aladdin are being rubbed by modern genius, set free by the constitution of the United States, the barrier against Communism.

There is the great chemical industry marching with giant strides since the end of the World War; chemistry on the farm; the sanitary packing and canning of meat, fish, and food; the conquest of disease; communications, radio, telephone and telegraph, shortening the business day, bringing news, music, sports, plays and public discussion into 27,500,000 homes, and extending them friendly roofs over far distant relatives, electric refrigeration, air conditioning, and naming these things you have just begun.

But as a sample of free enterprise — the automobile. It pays heavy taxes, receives no subsidies or gifts from government, asks little but freedom to plan and perform, is constantly selling a better car at a low price for a very low margin of profit and pays high wages for a shortening week's work.

The makers of the four or five popular-priced cars average no more than $20 per car, and of this amount one-third to one-half is profit from accessories and replacements.

There are now about 30,000,000 registered automobiles and trucks in the United States, sixty-eight per cent of world total. Americans have one motor vehicle to four persons; Germany one to twelve persons; Italy one to ninety-three and Russia says no. No record.

To manufacture these cars and equipment $1,300,652,000 is invested in plants employing directly in a good year, like 1937, 517,000 workers. The motor vehicle industry — car, truck, bus and tractor — takes ninety per cent of all gasoline, eighty per cent of strip steel, fifty-three per cent of malleable iron, forty per cent of mohair, twenty-nine per cent of nickel, 35 per cent of all consumed in America, to say nothing of cotton, leather, copper, aluminum, zinc, lumber, etc.

The automobile industry is a huge buyer of soy beans, turpentine, wool, sugar, cane, corn, fax seed and the "little busy bee" employs each shining hour to produce nineteen tons of beeswax annually for automobiles.

These 30,000,000 motor vehicles average 8,870 miles yearly, or 266 billion miles — enough to go to the moon and back nearly 554,000 times! A round trip of 480,000 miles! In 1920 we produced 2,227,340 cars and trucks that sold at average retail price of $1,336. In 1937 this giant of free enterprise produced 5,016,437 cars and trucks which sold at an average of $789 — and a far better car, in looks, performance, comfort and safety.

If these 5,016,437 vehicles had sold at the same price that pre-

President Stresses His Help To England

Asks Permission To Let British Buy 12,000 More American Planes

Declares Steady Stream of Airplanes Is Flowing to British Isles; Attacks Chairman Martin

By MAX BOYD

BOSTON, Oct. 30. (P) — President Roosevelt disclosed tonight that he had asked the National Defense Priorities Board to give "most sympathetic consideration" to a British request for permission to buy 12,000 additional planes in the United States.

In a campaign speech, prepared for a nation-wide broadcast from a Democratic rally in the Boston Garden, he said there was a "steady stream of airplanes" already flowing from this country to Britain. This, he asserted, was responsible in part for the fact that the strength of the Royal Air Force was greater now than at the start of "three months of blitzkrieg in the air."

When the additional orders contemplated by Britain were approved, he said, they would bring England's present orders for military planes from the United States to more than 26,000.

Requires More Plants

"They will require still more new plant facilities," Mr. Roosevelt continued, "so that the present program of building planes for military purposes both for the United States and Great Britain will not be interrupted."

"Also large additional orders are being negotiated for artillery, machine guns, rifles, and tanks with equipment and ammunition. The plant capacity necessary to produce all of this military equipment is and will be available to serve the needs of the United States in any emergency."

Stephen Early, Mr. Roosevelt's press secretary, told reporters that the additional orders being negotiated for artillery and other weapons were for both Britain and the United States.

The president's address came at the end of a day in which he had traveled through Connecticut and Massachusetts and received a tumultuous reception upon his arrival in Boston.

Police Superintendent Edward J. Fallon estimated that 500,000 persons saw the chief executive during his ride in an open car, just after dark, from Boston's south station to the home of his son, John, for dinner.

Students Divided

One group of young men in a fraternity house near John's apartment house chanted "We Want Willkie" as the president left his car on his son's arm, while another group of students set up a rival yell of "We Want Roosevelt."

Police said the students attended the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Mr. Roosevelt devoted much of his speech tonight to a denunciation of

Greeks Inflict Heavy Losses on Italian Troops

Five Hundred Invaders Reported Killed in British Attack

By The Associated Press

ATHENS, Greece, Oct. 30. — Italian invaders began a two-pronged drive today through the mountains toward the Lakeshore industrial city of Ioannina (Janina), thirty miles from the Albanian border, but made little progress against the fierce Greek defenders.

Under cover of an artillery barrage, the Italians attempted one thrust from the northwest. Stubborn Greek resistance plus tortuous mountain terrain, which all but stymied the Fascist mechanized power, was reported to have made the going difficult.

Nearer the coast, a second drive was pointed toward a highway leading to the city ruled a hundred years ago by the conquering Ali Pasha, "Lion of Janina," but here, too, no considerable gains were reported.

Withdraw to Main Defenses

Greek advance guards withdrew slowly from the immediate vicinity of the frontier to their main defenses in the strongly fortified Metaxas line, some distance back in accordance with prearranged plans, neutral military observers said. The Italians were said to still be far from this line.

These observers expressed the belief the Greeks could hold their main defenses, commanding the narrow mountain passes which the Fascist legions must negotiate to offer a real threat to this little kingdom.

With the first major Italian drive

British Bombers Attack Berlin in Hard Snow Storm

Large Electrical Works Hit, Returning Pilots Declare

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Oct. 30. — Planes of the British Royal Air Force roared over Berlin in a blinding snow storm last night and sent high explosives and incendiaries crashing earthward in the pale light of parachute flares, the air ministry said today.

A large electrical works was hit, the British pilots reported.

They also started fires at oil plants at Magdeburg, Homburg and Sterkrade, the ministry said.

A thick mist froze on the planes over the North Sea and western Germany on the long flight to the German capital and other industrial centers. The weather thickened as they moved eastward and snow began falling sticking to windshields and sifting into the cockpits.

Forced To Fly Blind

The men were reduced to blind flying, hopeful that the weather would break before they reached Berlin. Instead it got worse, so that they were barely able to pick out their objectives.

"Still we managed to find our target," one pilot said.

Other raiders swooped down on Bremen and Wilhelmshaven, Germany, and on Der Helder, Ymuiden and Flushing, Holland, and Ostend, Belgium, attacking shipyards and docks.

In Berlin, informed sources said fifteen persons were killed by RAF bombs in various Dutch localities.

Other planes attacked railway communications, searchlights batteries, airdromes and anti-aircraft gun positions. The ministry said two British planes were lost in the operations.

The air ministry's news service said the British attacked 29 enemy airdromes in Germany, Holland, Belgium, and France, and started fires at fourteen of them.

Some of the planes, the news service said, unable to find their primary targets in the dirty weather, turned to industrial plants at Leipzig and Gelsenkirchen, and Krupp munition works at Essen.

The explosion of bombs at Magdeburg was so violent, the news service reported, that an attacking plane was badly shaken.

London Daily Mail Praises Kennedy

LONDON, Oct. 31. (Thursday) (P) — The London Daily Mail commented approvingly today on Ambassador Kennedy's speech in the United States on Tuesday night, and said his "intervention at this stage may sway the approaching election decisively in favor of the president."

Nazis Sink Freighter

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 30. (P) — The 5,779-ton former French freighter St. Malo has been sunk "by enemy action" while flying the Canadian flag, and 28 of her crew, most of whom were Canadians, are missing, the transport department announced today.

Petain Hints Deal with Hitler May Stamp Out "Free French" Move

By The Associated Press

VICHY, France, Oct. 30. — The old marshal of France, Henri Philippe Petain, told his defeated people tonight that France kept "at least our sovereignty" in the deal with Adolf Hitler, and hinted that his negotiations with the Axis would spur new steps to unite the nation and stamp out the "Free French" movement in the colonies.

French sovereignty, he said in a surprise radio speech, "demands defense of our soil, the stamping out of differences of opinion and the

WILLKIE PHOTOGRAPHED AT B. & O. STATION

Republican Says Kennedy Is Making Cheap Political Speeches

By WILLIAM B. ARDERY

ABOARD WILLKIE TRAIN EN ROUTE TO BALTIMORE, Oct. 30. (P) — Wendell L. Willkie asserted today that two American ambassadors are back in this country "making cheap political speeches" and "like candidates for constable, seeking to have their jobs retained."

The Republican presidential nominee told a station audience in Clarksburg, W. Va., that New Dealers were contending the only question involved in the campaign was foreign policy "and that by some black magic this one man (President Roosevelt) understands foreign affairs better than anyone else."

"This is the most critical period in European history," Willkie continued, "and this man who is supposed to be so interested in foreign affairs has only one ambassador on the job today in the four principal countries of Europe, and that is in Moscow."

"The ambassador to England, to the court of St. James, and the ambassador to France are back here making cheap political speeches to retain their jobs like any other political hirelings."

British Troops Land On Island in Greece

Transports Guarded by Warships Unload Many Soldiers

By The Associated Press

SALONIKA, Greece, Oct. 31. (Thursday) (P) — British troops have landed on Greek islands from troop transports guarded by warships of the British Mediterranean fleet, it was learned authoritatively today.

The number of British troops involved and the amount of equipment they brought could not be stated, nor could the location of the islands where they made their landings.

Late last night it also was learned that Greek troops holding the Italian offensive on their northern frontier had taken 800 Italian prisoners.

Greeks Halt Italians

Italy's war machine, operating in the mountains less than 100 miles northwest of this strategic city, was reported here to have been held by the stout defense of the crack Greek troops.

Taking advantage of the lack of Italian air activity, Greek military authorities mobilized every vehicle with wheels and rushed soldiers and material to the front in a manner reminiscent of the Paris taxicab army of 1914.

The first Greek soldiers wounded in the early action have begun to arrive at the base hospitals here.

Campaign Buttons Used in Turnstiles

NEW YORK, Oct. 30. (P) — If you think election campaign buttons are good only to indicate party loyalty, listen to William Jerome Daly, secretary of the Board of Transportation. "Records of the revenue division of the independent lines of New York City transit system of Oct. 29 revealed that among slugs and counterfeit coins there were 174 Willkie buttons and forty-eight Roosevelt buttons."

Daly was prompted to issue his statement after Raymond Pollakoff, 21, was arrested for trying to get by with a Roosevelt button which he had hammered into the approximate shape and size of a five-cent piece.

Republican Cites Broken Promises In Major Talk in Baltimore Armory

Objects to New Deal Sending Millions in Machine Tools to Russia; Demands Sound Money

By WILLIAM B. ARDERY

BALTIMORE, Oct. 30. (P) — Wendell L. Willkie said tonight that on the basis of President Roosevelt's "past performances and pledges" the country "may expect war by April, 1941" if the chief executive is reelected.

The Republican presidential nominee, addressing an applauding crowd in the Fifth Regiment armory, added to his prepared text to say that Senator Carter Glass (D-Va.) had arisen from his sickbed in 1932 to assure the country that Mr. Roosevelt would maintain a sound currency.

Likening Glass' statement to a speech this week by Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy saying that the president would keep the country out of war, Willkie asked:

"Are you kidding Joe Kennedy the same way you kidded Carter Glass?"

Willkie contended that the Roosevelt administration has been "helping those nations which the third term candidate says should be quarantined," declaring that a $7,000,000 shipment of machine tools recently was released "to Russia, the ally of Germany," he continued:

"This is no way to protect ourselves.

AGAINST HELPING RUSSIA

"As president, I will not help to mechanize the Red army so that it can carry out its purposes. We shall feel well content to mechanize the army of the United States.

"Appeasement is the surest way to war. No American would stand for appeasement. Nor shall we."

The audience cheered loudly. Perspiring freely in the warm hall, where an overflow crowd filled all 14,000 seats and jammed the aisles, Willkie said he wanted to know "whether his (Mr. Roosevelt) pledge for peace is going to last."

Both Democratic and Republican Leaders Angry over New Circular

NEW YORK, Oct. 30. (P) — Democratic and Republican leaders both denounced today a circular attacking the Georgia Warm Springs Foundation as a "private business operated for profit."

The circular, which Democratic National Chairman Edward J. Flynn called "the filthiest thing that has ever been done in American politics," bore the letterhead: "Independent Young Americans, Inc., of this city."

It presents that the Georgia Warm Springs Foundation instead of being the great humanitarian institution this country knows it is, and in which millions of Americans have participated — "which in the language of the proclamation has been represented to the American public as a charity and philanthropy of Franklin D. Roosevelt is in reality a private business operated for a profit."

"The Republicans may deny they had anything to do with this," Flynn said at a specially-called press conference, "but the fact remains this statement is being released simultaneously all over the country. If they don't know about

"Air Attack upon United States Almost Impossible" ---Lindbergh

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 30. (P) — Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh said tonight that an air attack on the United States could be accomplished only with almost insurmountable difficulty and that aviation has strengthened the nation's position, rather than weakened it.

The noted flier, in a speech prepared for delivery before a public meeting sponsored by the Yale undergraduate chapter of the American First Committee, said that "we are in a better position for defense than any other nation in the world."

This talk of invasion over Arctic air routes and South American jungles has arisen from a combination of propaganda, hysteria, and party politics.

Listing the "four natural air routes between this hemisphere and Europe" — the Northern Route, over Greenland and Iceland; the Great Circle route, over Newfoundland and Ireland; the Southern

Big Four States May Decide Who Will Win Nov. 5

Much Depends upon Vote in New York, Penna., New Jersey and Mass.

By The Associated Press
NEW YORK, Oct. 30 (AP)—With 114 electoral votes to parcel out the big four states of the east—New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts—may decide the issue next Tuesday between Franklin D. Roosevelt and Wendell L. Willkie.

Add to these the other states in this sector of the United States and it becomes obvious why both candidates, backed up by the other principal orators and campaigners of their parties, have concentrated, and are concentrating in the final stages, so much attention in this direction.

Somewhat like the tail of a kite in that their votes are fewer, these other states—Connecticut, Delaware, Maine, New Hampshire, Rhode Island and Vermont—nevertheless have twenty-seven electoral ballots combined to raise the area's total to 143, more than a quarter of the grand total of 531.

New York Leads Nation
New York has forty-seven of these to rank No. 1 in the nation. Pennsylvania is second with thirty-six, Massachusetts has seventeen and New Jersey sixteen.

Speaking of these eastern "Big Four," Republican campaign officials make no secret of their belief that Willkie must win, carry the bulk of their electoral votes with him. If the "solid south" goes Democratic as usual, and the west splits anywhere near even, then Willkie must win in the east to go into the White House.

National Republican Chairman Joseph W. Martin, Jr. and Eastern Chairman Samuel F. Pryor, Jr. are confident their candidate will do this. They expressed belief today that all four states were Willkie's—New York "emphatically," New Jersey, "Yes, probably," Pennsylvania "by 100,000 to 200,000" and Massachusetts, "in for sure."

Democrats Confident
Democratic National Chairman Edward J. Flynn and his aides express just as much confidence that President Roosevelt will carry the "Big Four" as he did in '36 and, with the exception of Pennsylvania, in '32.

His combined plurality four years ago in the "big four" was 2,313,471 and the Democratic leaders say they cannot see that this has been lost. Furthermore, they do not concede that these states are vital to their candidate.

Most neutral observers believe the vote in all four will be far closer than in 1936 and that it is possible for any of them to go either way. If they should all go the same way, they would set up a tremendous advantage that would be hard for the other candidate to overcome.

If they should split, and the election elsewhere should be close, it would be within the realm of possibility for any one of them to decide the winner.

Pelain Hints Deal

that the "collaboration" he has agreed upon with the Axis be "sincere" on the part of the French.

"Up to now," he warned, "I have used the language of a father. Today I use the language of a chief."

Pelain limited his definition of the price France will pay under his agreement with the German Fuehrer to "the principle of collaboration."

"Means," he said, "will be discussed later."

He did, however, disclose that in return France will benefit thus:

"In the near future the weight of suffering laid on our country can be lightened."

"The plight of our prisoners (there are some 2,000,000 French prisoners of war) can be bettered."

Expense To Be Lightened
"Occupational expenses, (France now must pay Germany more than $8,000,000 a day for German occupation) can be lightened."

"The line of demarcation (the French occupied and unoccupied France) can be rendered less rigid."

"Administration and feeding of the territory can be facilitated."

The marshal said that he accepted Hitler's invitation to confer of his own free will and that "this policy is mine; my ministers are responsible only to me."

"It was with honor and to maintain the unity of France—the unity of ten centuries—in the framework of the constructive activity of the new European order that I enter into the path of collaboration," he said.

Both Democratic

Congressional investigation of this ugly exploitation of disease and misery? Could anything be more malicious?"

Samuel F. Pryor, Jr., Eastern Republican campaign manager, added his denial to Martin's that the Republican organization had any knowledge of the pamphlet.

Flynn's attempt to connect this pamphlet with the Republican organization is one of the oldest tricks in machine politics," Pryor said, "we know nothing about it and Chairman Martin has strongly denounced it. It looks like the Democrats are getting desperate."

Italians Back Up Albanians In Smashing Attack upon Greeks

Motorized Columns Said To Be Making Satisfactory Progress

By The Associated Press
ROME, Oct. 30. Italian motorized columns were declared today to be smashing at the outer Greek defenses behind black-shirted Albanian infantrymen, and authorized sources said the invasion was going forward without "serious military difficulties."

The high command summed up the action in a single sentence: "Our troops have continued the advance in Greek territory, overcoming the resistance of the enemy's rear-guard."

The Rome radio reported specifically that Italian troops had advanced forty miles into Greece capturing the town of Sain Nikol (St. Nicholas). In a later broadcast the radio declared the fall of the Greek government of Premier John Metaxas "seems imminent."

Telegrams Only Aid

The only British aid thus far extended to Greece, the announcer said airdirectionally, were telegrams from King George and Prime Minister Winston Churchill.

Authoritative Italian sources denied rumors of a revolt against the Italians in Albania, saying that in fact the Albanians had shown such zeal for its adventure against Greece that it had been necessary to "restrain individual initiative which tended to interfere with the orderly developments of military operations."

The press speculated about alleged dissension within the Greek government. The newspaper Il Piccolo asserted that reports from Athens had told of a controversy between Premier Metaxas and Kostas Kotzias, a cabinet member described here as "a friend of Italy," over the Greek government's decision to fight.

Prince George Watched
Il Piccolo reported, too, that Crown Prince Paul of Greece, brother of King George II, was under police surveillance in Athens because of his pro-Italian views and asserted sympathy with Axis aims.

Greek Minister Politis still was in Rome today, although it was understood that he intended to leave tomorrow, and Italian Minister Grazzi was reported still at his post in Athens, protected by a special guard. It was assumed that arrangements would be made soon for the exchange of legation staffs.

In East Africa, it was announced, two British mechanized attacks at Tessenet and between Kassala and Sabderat had been "completely repulsed with light losses on our side."

British air raids on Assab, Eritrea, and Bardia and Tobruk in Italian Libya, were acknowledged to have caused "slight damage."

Tawes Opposes Proposals for Revenue Board

Comptroller Comes Out against Plans Urged by Rawls

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 30 (AP)—State Comptroller J. Millard Tawes at a legislative council meeting today opposed the Rawls Tax Commission's proposal to create a department of revenue.

"I would suggest that no changes be made at this time," Tawes declared. "It would . . . prove to be a costly experiment to the taxpayers of Maryland. I do not know of any good and sufficient reasons for such a change."

The Tax Revision Commission recently recommended sweeping changes in tax laws and centralization of tax administration in a new state department of revenue and taxes.

Would Change Tax Laws
Tawes recommended several changes in tax laws. Earlier, other state representatives favored changes in the workmen's compensation law and in the statute dealing with medical examiners.

Charles Moylan, state industrial accident commission chairman, recommended that the administration of the state Accident fund be divorced completely from the accident commission.

He also recommended that if an uninsured employer is unable to pay an accident award to an employee, the fine levied against the employer should go to the injured workman.

Under the present law, the fine goes to the state and the workman gets nothing.

He also recommended that certain nurses, janitors, insurance collectors and solicitors be covered by the workmen's compensation law.

Maldeis Seeks Changes
Dr. Howard J. Maldeis, chief medical examiner, asked that the Maryland post mortem examiners commission be authorized to hire part-time professional men for autopsy work and technical men for laboratory work.

Recommendations made by Tawes included:

That some non-revenue producing licenses be removed from statute books with increased revenue to be derived from other licenses remaining in force.

Organization of a uniform plan for administration of alcoholic beverage laws in the counties.

Tawes also urged that the state be given some fiscal supervision over counties and municipalities.

829,690 Maryland Voters Eligible To Cast Ballots

Increase of 78,583 Shown Since the 1936 Election

BALTIMORE, Oct. 30 (AP)—Approximately 829,690 Maryland Democrats and Republicans will be eligible to vote in the Nov. 5 presidential elections, an Associated Press survey showed today.

The total, representing the largest major-party registration in the state since 1932, showed an increase of 78,583 since the last presidential balloting in 1936 and a jump of 78,115 over the 1940 primary totals.

Based on information supplied by the county and city election boards, the up-to-date registration gave the Democrats a book majority of 306,480 the G.O.P., although the Republicans could boast their biggest registration increase in the last eight years.

The revised 1940 totals, compared with 1936:

Democrats Republicans Total
1940 . . . 568,065 261,605 829,690
1936 . . . 498,837 252,270 751,107

Since the May 6, 1940 primary, re-registrations and supplemental registrations have added 58,824 Democrats to the books and nearly 20,000 Republicans.

On the basis of the new figures the counties could out-vote Baltimore City in the forthcoming presidential election 473,688 to 356,002.

In twenty counties and Baltimore City, the registration shows a Democratic margin, although in two—Calvert and Carroll—the difference is slight. In 1936, both went Republican. Three counties showed a Republican majority — by more than 4,000 in Allegany county, although that county voted Democratic in 1936.

Republicans carried a total of five counties in the Roosevelt-Landon presidential contest. Heaviest registration among the counties was credited to Baltimore county, with 72,859 on the books. Allegany was next with 44,208. Prince Georges third with 38,422, and Montgomery fourth with 36,319.

Reports from Anne Arundel county, received late, indicated the registration there might exceed 41,000, giving it the third largest total in the state.

Von Papen Leaves Turkey To Report To His Fuehrer

Will Tell Hitler about Latest Developments in Istanbul

By The Associated Press
ISTANBUL, Oct. 30 (AP)—Franz von Papen, crafty German ambassador of two great wars, left Turkey unexpectedly today for Germany.

Papen will report to Adolf Hitler on Turkey's position and her intentions in the war which, at long last, has entered southeastern Europe through Italy's invasion of Greece.

It was twenty-five years ago this coming December that von Papen was sent back to Germany from the United States on the state department's representation that he had indulged in "improper activities in military and naval matters."

Hitler named him ambassador to Turkey in April of 1939, but he failed to prevent Turkey from entering into a mutual assistance pact with Britain.

Von Papen's recall to Berlin comes at a time when the Turkish press is declaring that "we are wholeheartedly with the Greek nation," and suggesting that this country tender all possible aid to Greece. (This information is contained in Ankara dispatches delayed an entire day in transmission.)

Yesterday Turkey celebrated the seventeenth anniversary of the republic in a martial manner, and an official of the ministry of defense said: "Turkey's army is in excellent condition if it is called upon to defend the nation's frontiers."

One newspaper, Yeni Sabah, went so far as flatly to warn Bulgaria that if she enters the war and "tries an adventure toward the Aegean, she will be faced by the Turkish army."

Both Yeni Sabah and Ulus, the official Ankara newspaper, denounced the Italian attack and urged heroic Greek resistance.

Rail communications were interrupted throughout Turkey (possibly by measures of military preparation).

Not only has free enterprise given the American buyer a constantly better car with cheaper and less frequent repairs, but better gasoline to drive it, better oil to lubricate it, better and safer tires to cushion it, and better and safer roads to drive it on.

When we compare what free enterprise has done to lower the cost of living and improve the standard of living with what the politicians have done, and at what cost, National Socialism burns with a feeble light. If they had to our 130,000,000 Americans could all get into these 30,000,000 cars and all ride on rubber at the same instant of time — a nation on wheels! When Hitler, or Stalin, or Mussolini do half as much, it will be twice as much as they have done!—Copyright, 1940, by Samuel B. Petten.

Lottery Ruling May Be Forced By Detroit Boy

Charges Drawing Illegal Because Six Numbers Are Missing

By RICHARD L. TURNER
WASHINGTON, Oct. 30 (AP)—Facing a possible legal test because the great draft lottery ended with six missing numbers, selective service officials pressed forward today with plans for getting the first contingent of conscripts into camp.

It is to consist of some 30,000 young men drawn from regions where camp facilities are already available. Officials intimated that voluntary enlistments might cover that entire number, but beyond that point, plans were to have 400,000 in uniform by Feb. 28, and 800,000 by June 15. Estimates were that this would involve an average of about 130 men from each draft area and about one out of each 20 registrants.

Six Capsules Lost
When, after seventeen hours and thirty-one minutes, the drawing of the blue capsules from the famous gold fish bowl was completed early today it was discovered that six capsules and their numbered slips had been lost. The last draw was the 8,994th. It should have been the 9,000th.

Rejecting the theory that souvenir seekers among the many whose hands were thrust into the bowl during the drawing might have made away with the tiny cylinders, officials began an immediate check of their records to determine just which numbers were missing. The records indicated that not six but eight were absent. They were: numbers 6,542, 7,192, 7,635, 1,033, 5,108, 7,771, 1,835 and 7,839.

"Little Lottery" Organized
A "little lottery" was organized immediately. The numbers were inserted in capsules drawn and given order numbers running from 8,995 to 9,002 inclusive. Then another discovery was made. Two of the numbers in the supplemental lottery—1,033 and 6,771—had actually been drawn earlier, it was ascertained. So they were cancelled out of the little lottery and reverted to their previous place in the draw.

Later in the day, Clarence A. Dykstra, the director of selective service, said he had been informed that on the basis of these developments, a Detroit youth who held serial number 158, the first drawn, was contemplating court proceedings to contest the legality of the drawing. It was assumed, although not known definitely, Dykstra said, that the youth lacked any ground for deferment, such as physical disabilities or family dependents.

Lottery Fair, Dykstra Says
Dykstra was emphatic in defending the fairness and accuracy of the lottery.

"After all," he said, "this was a lottery and even the position of the last six numbers was as much pure chance as any of the others."

The next process in the operation of the draft was the accurate checking and printing of a master list of the "order numbers" determined by the lottery. The completed master list will be dispatched as soon as possible to all local draft boards.

When the order numbers have been fixed there, the classification of men will begin. With that process will begin also the weeding out of men needed in defense industries and men with dependents, and finally exemptions for physical disabilities.

Vanderbilt Sees Danger of Nazi Attack upon U. S.

Says It Would Come in Two Weeks if England Is Defeated

CLEVELAND, Oct. 30 (AP)—Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., traveler and author, told a town hall meeting here today that he believed Adolf Hitler's bombers and transport planes would invade the United States through Mexico within two weeks should England fall.

He said the departure Tuesday of five U. S. destroyers and a seaplane tender from Key West, Fla., was evidence of fear of such developments. Eleven navy bombing planes followed the ships, he said.

All this activity occurred immediately after the German freighter Heiglund slipped out of Puerto Columbia bay without permission of Colombian authorities," Vanderbilt reported.

He asserted that he had "seen enough in Central America to scare me stiff." In Mexico the Nazis have at least 50,000 trained sharpshooters. They claimed they had seventy bombing planes and 106 air fields in Mexico alone.

"I found twelve planes and twenty-six trucks hidden on German-owned haciendas."

"American democracy can be saved by helping England with all war materials possible."

War Department Building Badly Damaged by Fire

Uncompleted Fourth Floor Ruined, Sabotage Possible

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30 (AP)—A fire which swept through an uncompleted fourth-story addition to the war department, imperiling secret codes and damaging records, was under official investigation tonight.

A board of five officers was instructed to investigate "all circumstances" including the possibility of sabotage, a few hours after the flames were brought under control.

Officials were inclined to the belief, however, that the blaze was of accidental origin. Secretary of War Stimson was quoted as saying that an electrical short circuit or a careless cigarette were "unquestionably" to blame.

The fire, which broke out about 4 a. m., raged for more than an hour. It gutted a new $110,000 fourth-story addition to the third wing of the munitions building on Constitution avenue, occupied by the war department since the World War.

Floors below the damaged area are occupied by the Message Center, the Signal Corps code room, the Military Intelligence division, the Air Corps, Adjutant General and Quartermaster Corps. Headquarters of the Signal Intelligence Service were flooded by water, military intelligence papers were damaged, and work in the entire wing was suspended for hours.

There was "no serious interruption in functioning" of any office except a quartermaster duplicating room, where about half the machines were destroyed.

Eighty pieces of fire fighting apparatus were called to the scene. Some 800 soldiers were summoned from a nearby post across the Potomac river, and a temporary cordon was thrown about the building. General George C. Marshall, chief of staff, took charge.

While they were fighting the flames, another alarm sent firemen to a blaze at the Lewis hotel training school, where fifteen were affected by escaping gas. Nine required hospital treatment.

Engineer and Two Firemen Die in Crash

LAKE ALFRED, Fla., Oct. 30 (AP)—The engineer and two firemen were killed here today when the Atlantic Coast Line's "Tampa Special" northbound express for New York, hit an open switch.

The dead: Ernest Graham, of Tampa, Fla., the engineer; Sam W. Knowles, observing fireman, also of Tampa, and the regular fireman temporarily identified as Hubert Reed.

Russia Belittles Power of Italy

"Red Star" Says "No Quick, Decisive Development" Is Likely

By The Associated Press
MOSCOW, Oct. 30.—The Soviet army organ "Red Star" declared today that the British fleet's mastery of the eastern Mediterranean was such that Italy could hope for no "quick decisive development" in its campaign to subdue Greece.

The article, which follows other remarks by the newspaper to the effect that Germany's unending air attacks upon Britain still had not given the Nazis air supremacy, observed:

"The location of Greece in the eastern part of the Mediterranean, while the British fleet is master, insures aid from her British Allies who are interested in keeping so advantageous a battlefield as Greece."

"The limited possibilities of Albania as the base for the Italian front—having only three or four highways—makes it difficult for Italy to concentrate overwhelming forces."

"With the appearance of British aviation in Greece the Italian bases in the southeastern part of Italy itself will be subjected to the blows of bombers."

"Under such conditions, operations in the Albanian-Greek theater of war do not promise a quick decisive development."

The Soviet government, it was disclosed, has been informed by the Greek minister of the war's progress.

Argentina's authorities are planning to raise the stakes in this year's Christmas lottery from 4,000,000 pesos (about $1,000,000) to 6,000,000 pesos (some $1,500,000).

Standard time was adopted by American railroads on Nov. 18, 1883.

Mr. Willkie Impresses People of Cumberland

The Republican nominee for president strongly impressed the great throng gathered to hear him not only by what he said but by the deep sincerity with which it was expressed, by his friendly countenance and by his contagious zeal.

Here, indeed, was a man of action, of intelligence, of ideals, of courage and of complete honesty, but, more than anything else, a man of full sympathy with and for the people.

Mr. Willkie presented his three-fold fundamental program in terse but forceful manner. It is, as he said, simple and very easy to understand.

First, he would make America strong in its domestic economy — to develop it so that it is vibrant and vital and will provide jobs for all of our people.

Second, he would build a defense system so strong that no dictator will ever seek to strike this great free land.

Third, he would unite the American people. Simple, indeed, but a formula that cannot be improved upon for revitalizing a sick nation, salvaging its opportunities from the wreckage of demoralizing experimentation and preserving the way of life its people wish to live and enjoy.

Other points, too, were made and emphasized, but this basic program, which Mr. Willkie has been preaching all over the country, without doubt won many to his side at the Queen City station as it has elsewhere throughout the country as manifested by the surging tide to his support now being registered in all the polls and on all sides.

Mr. Willkie surely added to his supporters here, and his engaging little helpmate to her admirers. Cumberland can be happy that they honored the city with a visit and gave its people a chance to meet them face to face.

A Portrait That Poses a Question

JOHN T. FLYNN, liberal columnist of the equally liberal magazine, the New Republic, has sketched a devastating portrait of Mr. Roosevelt in a little book entitled Country Squire in the White House.

This formerly enthusiastic follower of the president sums up Mr. Roosevelt as being agreeable and charming, kind, politically clever but not too intelligent; as having remarkably little background in economics and finance; as being self-confident and impulsive, liking to have his own way and relishing popular acclaim, and as acting invariably on the basis of expediency, and not on that of a genuinely fundamental political philosophy.

The question before the American people is whether such a combination of capricious and unpredictable traits merits indefinite continuation at the helm of government. Isn't it probable that what the nation needs in this critical period is a leader of real business experience and sound fiscal judgment rather than a genial, easy-going, free-spending, paternalistic country squire?

Fitting Retort by Cornwell To a Scurrilous Attack

JOHN J. CORNWELL, of Romney, one of the most highly regarded Democrats of West Virginia, which state he served as its governor with a creditable record, has justly and emphatically rebuked an attack upon him and his grandchildren, and upon Wendell Willkie, made the other day in the Martinsburg News. The attack published in the Martinsburg News was as follows:

"Childish antics and artistic endeavors at window displays have caused the local Independent Willkie Club headquarters here to be nicknamed the 'Playhouse of Adolescence.' One political observer commenting on the membership of this 'independent' club pointed out it was not unusual that the grandchildren (and their playmates) of former Governor John J. Cornwell, a public utility attorney, should also admire that other public utility lawyer, Wendell Willkie, who is endeavoring to ride into the White House—despite his lack of knowledge and experience—by spreading a lot of hokum on the 'no third term' theme."

Writing to the editor of the Martinsburg Journal, which duly published his letter, former Governor Cornwell declared that he would have had no respect for these "adolescent grandchildren" had they not "repudiated the whole un-American and un-American performance" at Chicago, "and supported Mr. Willkie."

"May I say, through your columns," Mr. Cornwell wrote, "that while I do not know what their 'adolescent' activities are in this campaign I made no suggestions and offered no advice to them as to whom they should support. The two 'adolescent' grandsons referred to were with me at the national convention at Chicago. They saw not only the hypocritical and fraudulent drift of Roosevelt as a candidate by the office-holding and sycophantic element that dominated the convention, but likewise they saw, and one of them got caught in, the bums' rush when the Chicago underworld was crowded into the galleries the night Roosevelt was nominated, rushed through the press entrance without tickets and into the space reserved for delegates, there to shout 'We want Roosevelt' when the sewer commissioner, down in the basement, gave the signal over the loud speaker.

"Seeing the inside of the spurious draft and the kind of human cattle that were crowded into the convention to make a noise for the people throughout the country to hear over the radio and mistake for genuine enthusiasm, I would have no respect for these 'adolescent' grandchildren had they not repudiated the whole un-American and un-American performance and supported Mr. Willkie."

"The suggestion that my support of Mr. Willkie is because he was a public utility lawyer hardly will be accepted by the people of Berkeley county who know me."

No, nor by the people of any other county who know the firm integrity and staunch patriotism of the man.

The Danger Facing Unions, Churches and Schools

THE FATE suffered by churches, universities and labor unions in nations which have one-man governments was brought into sharp relief in three questions which Mr. Willkie has asked in many of his recent speeches. These questions are:

"Do you men realize that the first thing that happens when power resides in the hands of one man always is the abolition of labor unions?"

"Do you people who are interested in your religion appreciate that among the first mouths that are closed are the mouths of the clergy?"

"Do you who are interested in the education of your children appreciate that under one-man rule one of the first things that is stopped is the voice of the schools?"

It cannot be contended with any show of logic that these questions are not of importance to the citizens of the United States. These are not normal times. Totalitarian ideologies are making rapid progress in the world. Mussolini once said that the Twentieth century belongs to Fascism, and judging by its rapid spread in the world it appears only too probable that he may have been right.

Today, with Britain under wartime rule, the United States remains practically the last unattacked democracy in the world. And for the first time in its history, a man who has served two terms in the presidency is threatening to break a tradition which has won the solemn respect of all presidents of the past.

Anyone familiar with the system of political patronage prevailing in the United States is aware of the fact that the longer a president is in power the greater are his chances of remaining in power. And regardless of how benevolent a ruler of that type may be, there is no assurance that his successor will be of the same type.

The American people are in a way lucky in that they are the last to be threatened by one-man rule. They have the benefit of examples in foreign lands. They cannot assert that they did not know what has happened to the church, to the universities and to labor unions in European nations. They have the distinct advantage of still being able to ponder the questions asked by Mr. Willkie.

Senator Joe Guffey of Pennsylvania, member of the third term board of strategy, may be signally honored by his home town of Pittsburgh. A movement is on foot to stage a tag day to raise money to pay income taxes it is alleged Joe owes the federal government.

Democratic Vice Presidential Candidate Henry Wallace is an amateur boomerang thrower—you know that Australian weapon. If it misses the mark it comes back and hits you on the nose. It was Henry who first threw that boomerang about Willkie being a Hitlerite.

Boss Flynn, a New York politician, says American newspapers are controlled by the "financial interests" or by "advertisers"—he doesn't seem to be able to make up his mind—and thereby advertises the fact that Boss Flynn is controlled by his own colossal ignorance.

Wendell Willkie says he would out do cynics from Washington. And the cynics.

We Don't Need To "Understand"

By MARSHALL MASLIN

One of the cruellest things we do is to judge our fellows without understanding them.

We see a man whom we have known all our lives get into terrible trouble, break his parents' hearts, ruin his own life, and we say: "How did he ever happen to do that?" "How did he ever know he was that kind of fellow?" And we judge him harshly because we do not understand why a man who seemed much like us should act so differently than we think WE would act in the same circumstances.

It has been said that to understand all is to forgive all, but I'm not sure that even understanding is necessary. After all, we have our own lives to live and understanding is frequently beyond us—when a man seems to be a criminal or a woman has made a sad

I think it would be good for us if, before we abuse people who do "things we wouldn't do," we could only remember two short paragraphs I copied years ago from Karl Menninger's book on "The Human Mind." This is all he says—and it is plenty:

"When a trout rising to a fly gets hooked on a line and finds itself unable to swim about freely, it begins a fight which results in struggles and splashes and sometimes an escape. After, of course, the situation is too tough for him."

In the same way the human being struggles with his environment and with the hooks that catch him. Sometimes he masters his difficulties; sometimes they are too much for him. His struggles are all the world sees and it usually misunderstands them. It is hard for a free fish to understand what is happening to a hooked one."

Perhaps that last sentence is all we need. It is not necessary for us to be wholly "understanding" if we can remember occasionally that it is hard for a free fish to understand the struggles of a hooked one. We can be kind, then, without being wise; and we can mind our own business with less of a struggle if we realize that the fellow in trouble isn't "just naturally cussed" but may be just a poor fish who is caught on a hook and doesn't know how to get free.

Roosevelt Alibis Quite Untenable, Gen. Johnson Says

BY HUGH S. JOHNSON

NEW YORK CITY, Oct. 30.—At Madison Square Garden the president alibied his defense failures by saying that he did not provide a fine defense, and anyway the Republicans prevented him from providing defense.

If he did provide defense, why did we have to appropriate or authorize upward of eleven billion dollars in 1940 after disclosures that, on land and in the air, we were practically without any modern fighting equipment at all. The truth is that on the one hand we had no defense and on the other, both the president and the secretary of war repeatedly assured us that we had.

He dragged out the ancient alibi that we are unprepared because prior to 1933, the Republicans didn't build up our defense. As had been repeatedly shown, the Republicans constantly appropriated for defense a larger share of the national budget than the New Deal did in any fiscal year up to 1940, and a larger absolute amount than did the New Deal in the fiscal year 1934.

But the real reason is that Hitler didn't start to arm until 1933. Until then, Germany was wholly helpless, disarmed and surrounded on all sides by hostile bayonets in overwhelming strength. Up to 1936, France with her allies plus England could have cut through Germany like a hot knife through butter. As to the Navy, the London Limitation Treaty was still in effect.

The Republicans couldn't legally and shouldn't morally have started rearmament. That part of the Madison Square Garden speech is rank deception.

The second leg of the Rooseveltian alibi is that Congress wouldn't let him rearm. The answer is that in that in the Recovery Act of 1933, Congress gave him authority to spend any part he wished of the bulk of $3,300,000,000 for the "mechanization and motorization" of the army and building up the navy and heavier-than-air-craft for defense. Except for about $230,000,000 for the navy, much of that money went for raking leaves. "Motorization and mechanization" means the dreaded panzer divisions. He built not one of these.

Much More Absurd

His third alibi is that a little group of wilful men ("Republicans") in Congress prevented defense. That is exactly Chamberlain's alibi, but in the mouth of Mr. Roosevelt it is much more absurd. He had a rubber stamp Congress. He could have had whatever he wanted as the record proves. He didn't try. On the contrary he consistently ignored or pruned out request after request of the Army for defense funds. He continued to do that right up to January of this year.

If he foresaw, as he says he foresaw, this default situation overseas, his lack of leadership and courage is utterly inexcusable. He had no plan as late as June 1940. He asked for a pitance for defense and told Congress that was all he needed and to go home. He didn't lead defense. Republicans in Congress did, at popular demand.

He says the "reactionary" Republicans stopped him just as (he says) a reactionary government weakened France to its fall. Apart from the fact that the Republicans were a pitiful minority and couldn't stop anything, is the gross deception that a "reactionary" government weakened France.

It was an imitation French Fourth New Deal government that boondoggled while French defense went to seed, just as it was an American Fourth New Deal government that boondoggled while our defense languished. And he has the cool, crass nerve to call that Republican sabotage of defense.

Willkie Miles Ahead

The president quoted the individual expressions of a few Republican congressmen as opposed to defense. He isn't running against them. Willkie is the other candidate's name. He has been miles ahead of Roosevelt in urging defense—just as Congress and the people have.

He gave one hint of what will

HEADS GREEK ARMY

Gen. Alexander Papagos

In command of all the Greek land forces defending the tiny nation against the Italian invasion is General Alexander Papagos. Despite the overwhelming odds against her, Greece announced initial successes.

Fundamentals of American Freedom Hinge upon Election, Professor Says

By LEWIS E. THEISS

Professor of Journalism, Bucknell University, Lewisburg, Pa.

The reason why America should elect Mr. Willkie, in my opinion, is the basic reason that only by doing so can we preserve the fundamentals of democratic freedom in this country.

This statement is no partisan view, but is my reasoned conviction, based wholly upon the facts as I see and understand them.

Granting to Mr. Roosevelt every good intention in the world, the most intense patriotism, and an ardent desire to preserve the American form of government, nevertheless a thinking person cannot fail to take account of the situation in which the President has placed himself, and what must naturally follow from such a position through the operation of fundamental natural laws.

Gets Dangerous Advice

By his own choice, the president has surrounded himself with advisers, many of whom most evidently desire to destroy the American form of government and substitute for democracy some form of communism or communistic government. For almost eight years Mr. Roosevelt has been following the advice or adopting the suggestions of these men.

These suggestions, frequently, are of such a nature that, once the initial step is taken, others follow inevitably, carrying the country irresistibly along a craftily-conceived course, to a goal unredeemed-of by any but the instigators of these moves. The process is like prying loose a huge boulder that stands poised on the brow of a steep hill. It starts to roll slowly, but as it progresses it gains such momentum that nothing can stop it.

Seeks the Spectacular

Add to this situation Mr. Roosevelt's innate and perfectly obvious desire to do the new, the spectacular, to blaze new trails, to disregard long-established practices, and you have the most convincing reason why his tenure of office should end now. By trying for a third term, he has defied a tradition almost as old as our government itself—a tradition founded by the fathers of that government for the purpose of preventing dictatorship and the seizing of unlimited and lasting power by one man.

Mr. Roosevelt has, at the same time, practically proclaimed his own indispensability. America has many troubled years ahead of her—probably decades. If any individual conceives himself to be indispensable now, as we draw near to these troubled times, how can he fail to feel, even more strongly, his indispensability, four years from now?

Can Force Party

Always a president has had it in his power, after one term in office, to force his party to renominate him. Mr. Roosevelt has now forced his party to renominate him twice. Can any thinking person doubt, in view of all these facts, that he would hesitate, four years hence, to force a third renomination?

There is now, in 1940, a very real probability that, despite AAA checks, and WPA doles, and thousands of other handouts of public moneys, Mr. Roosevelt can be beaten. But can any thinking person believe that, after four years of building up a political machine with billions of public funds, he could be beaten?

Must Decide Now

Therefore, we must decide now, in November 1940, whether we wish to preserve for our children that freedom of thought and action, that equality of opportunity to make the

Cobb Can Make a Good Mint Julep, Edwin Hill Says

By EDWIN C. HILL

Mr. Irvin S. Cobb, the Princeton, N.J., author, who has won a Pulitzer Prize for his book "The Making of a Nation," is no less a poet.

"After all," says Edwin Hill, "I reckon that I can make one—a grizzled, unrecognitioned, veteran gunnery officer he was one time chief of artillery, Breckenridge's staff and faithful in Johnston's army. Johnston ran out of an army."

The Best Mint

He always held that the best grew on the grave of a Confederate brigadier general, so that congenial essences of the slumbering warrior's soul might steal through the sod to whisper to the tender roots of that fronded glory waving about, while he drank the bugle of eternity's roll, wonder whether any mind might listen while he cusses out Gen. William Tecumseh Sherman.

"He was one of your old-school julepists, this uncle of mine," he writes, building a julep was a major rite, a solemn ceremonial, and about the preparations he was as bit as serious as a grand lodge general. He lifted the spoon with ritualistic gesture. There was something pontifical in his very approach to the sugar bowl. The board became a high altar, a demijohn a sacred vessel. But presently, as he fussed and manipulated, as the snowy rime formed on the silver goblet and the tinkled like sweet, small bells, poetry entered into the shipboard proceeding—poetry and romance and snatches of hymns.

Sounds and Scenes

"You caught the plunk of a banjo and the melancholy thrum of some African chant drifting from a whitewashed log cabin across damask tobacco patch at shimmering hemp field. You sat to behold the cardinal weaving in and out, like some bright shuttle, through the of the hackberry's foliage, glimpsed a pretty girl with a red at her breast and a dimple in her cheek, while she leaned against the porch pillar of the old red homestead set way back there, the distance, in the lovely distance, on the crest of a roll hill.

Ten Reasons For Supporting Wendell Willkie

By Arthur Goodrich

I shall vote for Willkie

Because, he believes in the American way of life and does not want to run the country—he wants to serve the country.

Because he is equipped by experience to serve you well in Washington as the manager of your business.

Because he comes of plain people and is interested in plain people.

Because he does not believe in wasting your money; he will conserve it.

Because while neither he nor any other man is indispensable, he is peculiarly fitted to develop and direct the huge program for national defense.

Because while he believes wholeheartedly in helping those who need it in times of emergency, he does not believe in manufactured emergencies, or that there need be, any longer, needy people in this country.

Because he has faith in America; he does not believe, as his opponents do, that the United States is finished. He believes it has only just begun, and that the future is bigger than anything in the past.

Because his election will revive business. It will give employers hope and confidence (which they have not had during the last eight years) and so will rapidly provide jobs for the 10 million, who after eight years of throwing away billions, are still unemployed—just as they were in 1932.

Because while the panic of 1929 and the resultant depression would have happened, no matter who was president, the present administration has made it permanent. Willkie is the man to end it.

Because he believes in peace, not war!

Another Bit Of Evidence

From the Wheeling, W. Va., Intelligence

Necessity makes the mother-invention. Ordinarily, American manufacturers import some $8,000,000 pounds of fur annually, largely from France and Russia. The U.S. has practically shut off these imports.

Now comes the Hat Corporation of America, our largest hat manufacturer, with headgear of high quality in which cashmere substitutes satisfactorily for the imported fur.

This fibre, a product of the U.S., has been developed in cooperation with the National Dairy Products Corporation. It possesses qualities which according to authorities, some instances produce a hat not partly with cashmere with superior qualities to those made of the natural raw material.

The potential importance of development lies in the fact that with the use of a mixture called for only from ten to fifteen per cent of the fibre, the dairy industry would be given a decided boost.

Here is further evidence of inherent self-sufficiency of American people. We have the sources, the energy and the initiative to meet virtually every demand. The only enemy we need fear is governmental policy that suppresses the individual's ambition.

Quotable Quotes

By George C. Peery, ex-Governor of Virginia

It may be true that dictators do not arise where free elections exist, but one may question whether dictators are entirely free and unimpeded where the Executive, or the legislative body, or the judicial branch, or the power and patronage of a president of the United States should be entirely free of any such suspicion.

THE DAILY STORY

ONE OF THE BEST

She Was One of the Best That Ever Hit Hollywood; All She Needed Was Someone To Tell Her So

By GLENN REILLY

"What? Say that again—slowly! I want to be sure I heard you right!" Martin Jones, head of Marvel Pictures, moved up close to the telephone. He listened, then dropped the handset on its cradle as though it had bitten him.

He pressed the button which would summon Perry Holcomb, Marvel's gifted press agent and general utility man. His face was bleak as he greeted Holcomb.

"Venita Vare has just been involved in a highway accident up in the mountains on location," he told Perry strickenly. "The state

Perry beamed and gave her his card. "You leave it to me!" he said with relief. "I'll call around for you any time you say tomorrow. If you'll give me your name and address. If you don't like my idea, I won't press it." For the first time since the report of Venita Vare's accident he breathed normally. It was a long chance, but long chances had a way of working every so often.

"I am a master at the art of psychic control — what is vulgarly known as hypnotism, Miss Haynes."

"I shall be with Miss Haynes every minute."

troopers just sent in a call. They say that Venita will be out of general circulation for months!"

"With her greatest picture to date just about finished!" Perry moaned. "It looks as though I'd better start looking for a job, Martin!"

The other man groaned aloud. "I'll help you look, Perry!" he corrected. "With Marvel's bankroll practically invested in the picture, how can we get any returns unless Venita finishes it? We can't keep a whole crew on the job for months more."

Perry looked somberly at the floor. "Give me a couple of days to think this out," he begged. "I never saw a problem yet that couldn't be worked out some way!"

"I'll give you a week—and then we'll shut down." The president granted pessimistically.

In the wee small hours of the next dawn Perry was still cudgeling his tired mind when the perfectly obvious solution hit him. Somewhere in town there must be a girl resembling Venita Vare who could act passably for the few remaining scenes! With skillful photography, a bit of adequate dubbing in by a voice imitator, he would have it.

His long search through the casting agencies was a very discouraging process, and in the end availed him nothing. It was pure luck of the first magnitude which led him to an all-night eating place on the outskirts of town. And there, serving food and drink to the populace, was Judy Haynes—and if possible, she looked more like Venita than Venita herself!

But Judy turned down his proposition cold.

"It's out! I can't act—and I'd be frightened to death trying it. I've never even had any experience."

"You could pull a big organization out of a disastrous jam, young lady," he pointed out. His mind snapped along fast now as he saw his sudden luck fleeing. A fantastic thought came.

"Would you do it if I fixed it so that you'd more or less be unconscious of what you were doing?" Judy looked at him suspiciously, but she saw he was deadly earnest.

"I'll think it over," she hazarded dubiously. "After all, I can't promise any less."

tions alone, Miss Haynes. If you will put yourself under my direction I can remove them and allow you to perform this service without the slightest qualms!"

Perry beamed. "Won't you give it a try?" he pleaded with the girl. "If you still think it won't work by the time you've made the several necessary screen tests, we'll call the whole thing off. If it does work, you'll be saving hundreds of jobs for people who need them and making some very nice money for yourself!"

"There is no doubt whatever that it will work," the psychic specialist said calmly. "I shall be with Miss Haynes every minute on the studio grounds, directing her, willing her to be natural. You shall see!"

Production on the expensive picture was held up just four days. Judy's tests were perfect, all made under the most vigilant eye of the psychic controller.

"It's amazing—but what you said is true about my losing my inhibitions!" Judy said with a little wonder, after the tests were over and actual work done on the remaining scenes of the picture. "Every hour I fell more at ease and more confident!"

"You're doing a grand job, my dear, and Marvel will never forget you!" Martin Jones assured her warmly. "The scenes you're doing are even better than Venita's!"

Judy smiled. "It's all due to you!"

she averred. "Without your help I'd be terrified!"

"That's the most screwball scheme I ever heard of—but it worked!" Martin Jones told Perry as they watched the girl go back to work, with the psychologist in plain sight of her, frowning with concentration. "I thought hypnotism was a fake, but I'll think differently after this!"

Perry grinned at him. "Mind over matter, that's all," he confessed. "That's no hypnotist, but a ham actor!" I hired from the casting agency!" — Distributed by United Feature Syndicate.

On Wings of Song

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

By MARIE BLIZARD

SYNOPSIS

READ THIS FIRST: GETTING a chance to enter the Sember radio contest through the friendship of VANCE HEALEY, topnotch radio sports announcer, KIT REILLY, young and eager ball singer, holds small hope of being able to win. The contest winner is to receive $5,000 and a one-year contract to sing on the Sember program as the successor of NANA HARRIS, famous songstress, who is retiring. Nana is pleased by Kit's singing and uses her influence to have the judges award her the first prize. While Kit and her friend and dance partner, FRANK L. MAZE, are eating their Thanksgiving dinner, a telegram comes which tells Kit she has won the contest.

CHAPTER TWELVE

IT IS THE last week of November, the first week in December of the year 1936. The headlines are kindled with tense international situations. Personalities make front page news. The business of the nation lifts its head optimistically. Romance hits an all-time high and a love story becomes world news.

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden sends fresh instructions to British Ambassador Sir Henry Chilton to press for an answer from General Franco on just what the Spanish Fascist leader intends to do about British shipping off the coast of Spain.

King Edward visits the stricken mine area of South Wales and promises relief to his distressed subjects. Lindbergh is reported missing on a flight from Ireland to England.

Throughout the world, three million Catholics pray for the dying Pope Pius XI.

The Babson financial report declares November business the best since 1929. O. O. McIntyre, famed columnist, is offered and rejects a seven-thousand-dollar weekly fee for ten-minute radio talks.

Larry Kelley and Clint Frank, both of Yale, are the gridiron heroes in the glittering limelight that once shone on Vance Healey.

A Vanderbilt heiress takes a second husband, the former husband of a cousin, Rosalie Ponselle becomes engaged to a Baltimore businessman. Mary McCormick, thrice-married opera star, takes a fourth husband. Betty Jaynes, fifteen years old, is hailed as the greatest operatic discovery since Talley, and faces the press with assurance and states that she has no romantic interest. "Boys and careers do not mix," she says wisely.

In the dark of night an American divorcee speeds across the continent to the south of France in a fast motor car, fleeing from the storm caused by her proximity to the throne of England.

A king abdicates.

Obscure items in the radio columns of the New York dailies announce that on the morning of November 26, the Sember Piano company will announce the name of the winner selected from the contestants in the now-concluded contest series.

On November 26, a new star, to be known to millions as Kitty O'Reilly, emerges from obscurity.

In an office in the Consolidated Broadcasting building, she approaches the receptionist diffidently, and asks if she may see Mr. Kane.

"My name is Reilly, Kit Reilly."

The receptionist drops her poised pencil and stares for a moment of surprise and envy at the slight figure of the girl dressed in new and inexpensive clothes. She lifts her telephone and speaks into the instrument, in a voice still marked with surprise:

"Miss O'Reilly has arrived," she says prophetically.

Miss O'Reilly is escorted into the presence of Mr. Kane and the others who are waiting to receive her. Her reception is marked with the fan-fare attendant on the launching of a personality.

Later, speaking of that morning to a confidante, she said, "It was that day that I learned there are other than musical Cs—the capitals, my dear, of four little words: Committees, congratulations, contracts and checks!"

There were also, in addition to these primary factors in the making of a star, the press and the photographers.

When this small army had departed to spread her Cinderella story from Maine to Mexico, Nana Harris helped her to escape from the people who still crowded around her.

She said: "I'm waiting for my car. When it comes, I'll give you a lift home. . . . Also, I may be able to give you a few suggestions that will help you over the first difficulties that you'll meet as a stranger to all this."

"Please do. I'm feeling very much like Alice in Wonderland. No part of it seems quite real. . . . Even this room. I expect I'll wake up in a minute and find myself back in my room in Sullivan street."

But the room was real, and Kit felt that she never would forget it. Walls of pickled pine, rug of shaggy beige, modern murals done in water colors, and wide windows curtained with hand-blocked fabrics symbolized the bright new world in which she had already taken her place.

"Try to remember everything you're feeling today. Sometimes it's nice to have it to look back upon. That feeling that the whole world is yours."

She said, "No, I don't feel as if I owned the world—yet. I suppose I will when I forget that last week I was as broke as anyone could be. It isn't easy to grasp the idea that I've got proof here I'm to receive five hundred dollars a week, or to get it for doing nothing more than singing three songs a week."

Nana sighed and said, "Don't make any mistakes, my dear, about that business of singing only three songs. It's more than numbers that you have to deal with. You're not getting paid for them, but for the quality of what you deliver. And that quality is something in you, a part of you and not what's written on the sheet of music."

"Oh, I want to give the best I have," Kit said passionately.

"We all do, but sometimes we forget how much we really have when routine gets us down. There's something else, too, that we have to keep in mind, and that's our duty to our sponsor, making the thing we have act as a bond between him and the people he is giving something to, a real financial return."

"But—but how?"

"I can't tell you that except to say that you'll have to give everything you have. You'll have to exclude personal things and be a public performer. Does it frighten you?"

"Frighten me? Oh, no. Tell me more."

Nana wondered how she could tell this enchanted child of the difficulties that she so well knew lay ahead of her.

PRICE-FIXING IS LAID TO EYEGLASS TRADE

Groups and Persons Ruling 95% of Lens Business in Nation Are Indicted

FLEEING OF PUBLIC SEEN

Evidence Is Said to Show $20 Spectacles Could Be Sold Profitably For $7.50

From N. Y. Times, May 30, 1940

Guaranteed Glasses, $8.50

"PROFITABLY" Says Uncle Sam

A general system of price-fixing by which the cost of eyeglasses throughout the country has been kept unnecessarily high during the last decade was charged yesterday in four indictments handed up here by a federal grand jury. The defendants include fourteen manufacturers, five wholesalers, three trade associations and twenty-one individuals.

These defendants, it was said, make and distribute 95 percent of all the eyeglasses sold in the United States, as well as most of the frames for them. Government investigators who conducted the investigation that led to the indictments disclosed that they would be the ultimate cost to the consumer. The ultimate object is a lowering of the price to the public, it was said.

Heavy Overcharging Alleged

The indictments, charging violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act, are based on allegations of price-fixing of goods sold in interstate commerce. The degree to which the ultimate cost to the consumer may have been inflated did not concern the investigators. It was said, however, one estimate was that a pair of eyeglasses selling for $20 might well bring a good profit if sold for $7.50.

Ping Pong Rules The Roost Now On Maginot Line

MONTMEDY, Occupied France (AP)—German occupation troops are playing ping pong on the summit of the shell-blasted Maginot fort near Montmedy where more than 200 French defenders died in one of the last battles of the war.

Between two of the four wrecked casemates soldiers have erected a tin roofed shelter overlooking the Chiers river at the point where the final German push around the extreme northern end of the Maginot line broke through.

Along the entire quarter-mile length of the fort German labor troops are constructing board walks and cleaning out the debris caused by artillery and grenade explosions. The position was one of the last to fall and, after four days of hard fighting, left the way open to the Germans.

The fort, German authorities said, will be put in order as a museum of the 1940 war.

Russia Brushes Up On Foreign Languages

MOSCOW (AP)—Study of foreign languages has been made compulsory in all high schools and colleges of the Soviet Union.

The council of people's commissars ruled that by 1943 German

English or French—in that order—should be introduced in the schools.

Twelve special foreign language institutes also are to be built.

Good Books Benefit Both Parent and Child

Proper Reading Is Suggested for Fathers and Mothers

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

Our children profit when we parents grow more skillful in their guidance. You, my Fellow Parents, who read this column regularly, believe you can improve your parenthood as a result of reading. Some of you are so busy you hardly have time to read more. Most of you, however, could find time to read more on child development, child guidance and family relationships, and some of you do read or you would not be writing me for selected lists of books.

It gives me a vast deal of pleasure to consider the thousands of parents and other persons throughout the United States and Canada who have written me enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope to send them one or more of the numerous book-lists I have made available. I feel confident that most who receive these lists will read one or many of the books named. In case they do they should profit from the experience.

Be Critical as You Read

I know, of course, as you know that an occasional person grows worried and confused from reading so many books which deal with her particular problems. Such a person should be prevailed upon to quit reading all such books. But with this rare exception, parents, or anybody else, can profit from selective reading.

As you listen to a lecture, or read an article or book on child rearing, be critical. Pick out only what squares with your reason and experience. When one lectures or another disagrees, calmly choose from one or the other, or from neither. Reserve your own judgment. You will be safe in keeping your eyes on those parents you know who have happy, likable children. Try to find out how these parents have succeeded. Then check what you find with what you read. With this attitude you should gain a great deal from reading most of the books on the selected lists I have made available.

Library Books

Though some of you might desire to buy a few of the suggested books, most of you will choose to borrow these books from the public library. (The librarian might suggest others as good.) If they are not in your library and a number of persons want them the library will try to provide them. If the library lacks the funds, you and your friends might induce one of your local service and civic organizations such as the American Legion, Rotary, Kiwanis Club, Woman's Club or P. T. A. to raise the funds for a book shelf on child welfare and guidance. P. T. A.'s would do far more good if they bought books to

Some of you don't have access to a public library. In this event your church, P. T. A. or club might be able to develop a library for parents. Better still, you might be working through some local organization, create public sentiment for the establishment of a public library in the community to provide useful books for all the people and their children.

Write me in care of this paper enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it, if you would like to receive a list of books and pamphlets.

Chamber To Accept Sponsorship of Pilot Training

Forwards Contract to CAA Official in Washington

The Executive committee of the chamber of commerce yesterday gave the go-ahead signal on the proposed Civilian Pilot Training school for Cumberland.

The committee instructed H. W. Smith, secretary, to have Washington forward the contract. Smith immediately wrote to John P. Morris, acting superintendent of the Civilian Pilot Training program, advising him of the move.

While the committee has approved the school and in so doing has accepted its sponsorship, Smith warned that yesterday's action does not mean that the chamber is ready to receive applications from flying enthusiasts. A contract must be received, signed and returned to Washington first.

The chamber secretary advised all young men interested to watch the papers regarding developments and information.

Barlon Woman

back to them, Mrs. Boucher said. "She is all right."

"Many saw her today," the speaker said, "when she appeared on the platform of the Wendell Wilkie Special—gracious and smiling, and I am quite sure that you will all agree with me that she is a lovely lady."

Back of Every Man
"You all know that back of every man, no matter how high his station in the world may be, there is always a woman—large or small—who plays an important part in his daily life, and is either a help or a hindrance to him."

"Mrs. Wilkie was born in Nashville, Tenn., and her mother named her Edith meaning Happiness; otherwise, rich gift—a very appropriate name for her, as all her life she has brought happiness to those who were associated with her."

"Shortly after this event the family—father, mother and two daughters—returned to Rushville, a small town in Indiana, and she grew up in a home where she never heard a cross word spoken. After graduating from high school she attended the University of Indiana, and later worked as librarian in Rushville and Elwood."

"She met Wendell Wilkie at a friend's wedding where he was an usher and she was a bridesmaid. It was love at first sight—a regular Wilkie whirlwind courtship."

"The day the United States declared war on Germany, April 6, 1917, Wendell Wilkie enlisted in the army. As a private he was assigned to an officer's training camp, was commissioned a first lieutenant, Aug. 15, 1917, and underwent special training in artillery gun fire."

Name Change Asked
"We are told that one day he called on the little librarian and said: 'Edith, I'd like you to change your name from Wilk to Wilkie and she evidently agreed with him, for they were married January 14, 1918, when Wilkie was 26, with what the said and settled Indiana folks called 'no particular prospects' but what the young Wilkies considered a glowing future."

"Wilkie, on leave of absence from the camp, was held up by a blizzard which stalled the train, so he arrived for the wedding two days late, with a big flower box containing a frozen bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley, but Edith Wilk prized it and carried it to the altar."

"Lieutenant Wilkie sailed with his regiment on September 9, 1918 for France, remaining there until February 15, 1919, and near the end of the war he was promoted to a captaincy and he was called an excellent officer."

"During his absence, the bride lived with her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Miller Hamilton, in Washington, so she knows from experience what war means to lonely women who are left behind to pray, worry and watch for news from their loved ones."

"The Wilkies have a promising young son who will soon be eligible for the draft, so their hearts will beat in sympathy with the mothers and fathers of the 17,000,000 boys who may have to serve, but if there is any possibility of avoiding a war we are quite sure that the Wilkies will find the way that will be best for the American people."

Lived at Akron
"When Capt. Wilkie returned from overseas they lived in Akron, O., and later moved to New York where the father, mother and 20-year-old son now live in an upper apartment house just opposite the Metropolitan Museum of Art."

"As I looked at Mrs. Wilkie today the thought came to me, what a great difference a year has made in her life, for this time last year her husband was principally known as a champion of American business, and she was practically unknown, only to her family and intimate friends."

"Last year we had the pleasure and the big thrill of attending the Republican national convention held in the magnificent Municipal auditorium in Philadelphia, seating capacity of 14,000, where women received more recognition than was ever given to women at any other political convention ever held anywhere."

"There were 1,000 delegates, 5,000 women visitors, including 200 official women delegates and after-party wives and relatives of the candidates, delegates, etc. Feminine enthusiasm knew no bounds. Women's divisions of the contending candidates' organizations worked feverishly for the votes of wavering delegates. Excitement was intense. There were hundreds of busy newspaper men and women, and scores of photographers trying to get a 'Scoop' for their paper."

"In all that throng no one seemed to notice little Mrs. Wilkie, who was hiding her face under a big hat, and the night of the victorious ballot she was sitting in the gallery among people who had no idea that she was the wife of the nominee. Wendell Wilkie, for whom the crowds were shouting."

Typify Happy Marriage
"The Wilkies epitomize the American ideal of a happy marriage. After nearly twenty-three years of married life they are inseparable companions."

"Work and pleasure are shared alike, and throughout the years that have slipped away, they have solved their problems, endured hardships and enjoyed luxuries together."

"She adores her big, broad-shouldered, six-foot, fine-looking husband, who looks admiringly down at her, for she is only five-foot-two and a half inches tall; but she has a trim, girlish figure—a pleasing voice, a winning smile, blue eyes that light up with beauty when she talks, and her face is framed with short, fluffy brown hair."

"Perhaps the best way to describe Mrs. Wilkie is to say that she is utterly feminine. She is fond of reading. She does not play bridge. She belongs to no clubs, but it is her line to be a charming hostess—an intelligent, devoted wife and mother, modest and retiring."

"Now today Fate has placed her in the glare of publicity and when Wendell Wilkie makes her First Lady in the Land, we know that she will stand the test and will do her part to uphold the dignity and traditions of the White House, and in time her name will be added to the long list of wise, dignified capable First Ladies of the Land who were true, loyal helpmates."

in office for seven and a half years. When it ran for office four years ago, there were 9,400,000 men unemployed in this country, and until some people began to go back on the payrolls in connection with defense work, this year, there were 9,600,000 unemployed. Let me say to you that if you elect me president of the United States my first undertaking will be to put American men back to work at American wages."

Domestic Problems Important
"Instead of thinking that our domestic problems are the unimportant problems in these United States today, I think our domestic problems are the most important. Why for seven and a half years we have had preached to the people of America that this great free land of ours has reached the end of its development and the end of its achievement."

"Let me say to you that we have not even yet touched the borders of our achievement. The possibilities of development by chemistry, by science, and by engineering, if the energies of the people are but loosened by the government, by a friendly government towards American enterprise, America will begin to expand and grow, so that there will be jobs for all Americans at higher wages and a constantly rising standard of living."

"No man in America believes any more than I do in social security, or in the Railroad Retirement act, or in laws which protect you against working more than 30 many hours a week or being paid below a certain level of wages, and all the other social gains of labor."

"There is no more vigorous friend of that kind of social legislation in the United States than Wendell Wilkie. But I want to do much more than that for American labor. I want to start the wheels of industry going so that every man in Cumberland, Maryland, can have a job and a job at decent wages. It does a man no good to have the right of collective bargaining about a job that he doesn't have. And social security does not protect the person who doesn't have a job."

"And I say to you also that if we continue to go down the road to bankruptcy as we are doing, your social security payment will not be on hand to protect your old age."

Must Keep America Free
"People of Cumberland, this is the last untouched land of freedom in all the world, and we must keep it so and we can keep it so only if we keep it strong, and the only way we can keep it strong is by making it productive."

"I have said from hundreds of platforms in this country, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, that only the productive can be strong, and only the strong can be free."

"The program I am talking to the American people about is threefold: it is simple; it is very easy to understand."

"In the first place, I want to make America strong in its domestic economy. I want to develop our economy so that it is vibrant and vital and provides jobs for all of our people."

"I want to build a defense system so strong that no dictator will ever seek to strike this great, free land of ours."

"Then, ever and above that, I want to unite the American people. I stand before you in 1940 as the only candidate for president of the United States who has the confidence of labor, the confidence of industry, and the confidence of agriculture. And if you elect me president of the United States, with the help of fine fellows like Walter Johnson, we shall bring those three elements of the American population together in a great co-operative effort, a great effort toward

HAPPIEST BIRTHDAY—Mayor Harry Irvine was 68 yesterday. And his birthday found the mayor in excellent spirits. "This is the happiest day of my life" the mayor beamed while waiting for the Wendell Wilkie Special to pull in at the Queen City station. When the mayor walked into his office yesterday morning, he was met by his secretary, Miss Mary Clay, who congratulated him. He found a big bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums and carnations on his desk. The bouquet was from the city hall force.

Police Receive Complaints On Hallowe'en Pranks

Numerous complaints about boys playing Hallowe'en pranks have been pouring into police headquarters during the past few weeks, but last night's list topped them all.

Desk Sgt. W. B. Lovenstein was kept busy answering the telephone and taking down information of and on.

Some of the calls included smearing vulgar language on automobiles with soap, throwing ink on a newly painted white house, throwing plaster of paris about and many others.

Police investigated, but found out that "lightning never strikes twice in the same place."

"Well, I say to you it is worth saying."

"There is no indispensable man in America. Why, the only possible excuse that is offered for returning the third-term candidate to office is that we are engaged in an international situation where this one man is the only man who can guide us through. Let me say to you, 'Whenever a man arises among the people with the notion that he is the one and the only indispensable man and he begins to get dictatorial complexes, you can read the pages of history and you will find that such a man always leads the people down the road to war.'"

"Why, in 1932, when he was nominated on one of the great liberal platforms of the age, the third-term candidate flew out to Chicago and said, 'I accept this platform one hundred per cent.' One of the provisions of that platform was to reduce the cost of government twenty-five per cent. You know what happened. I say again to you that if he reaffirms the platform of the Democratic party of 1940, pledging his party to keep out of war, then I hope he remembers his pledge of 1940 longer than he remembered his pledge of 1932. If he does not, some of these Maryland boys who are being called today in the draft will shortly be loading on to the transport."

Judge Future by Past

"You can only judge of a man's future actions by his past actions. And if he repudiates the planks of the 1940 platform the same as he did those of 1932, what way do you people then have to protect these boys that are being called into service today? People of Maryland, I wish I could stay here and talk to you all afternoon on this beautiful day. I feel as good as the day. As a matter of fact I never felt better in my life. My voice cracks once in a while, but I must remind you that the liberty bell is cracked, too. But I am going to keep ringing it right up to election night."

Moose To Have Costume Ball Tonight at Home

Cumberland Lodge No. 271, Loyal Order of Moose, will hold a Hallowe'en costume ball at the Moose home, on Beall street, tonight from 9 p. m. until 1 a. m.

Appropriate decorations and novelties and prizes will be distributed. The Society Ramblers will play for the dancing to which the public is invited.

Why, the only possible excuse that is offered for returning the third-term candidate to office is that we are engaged in an international situation where this one man is the only man who can guide us through. Let me say to you, 'Whenever a man arises among the people with the notion that he is the one and the only indispensable man and he begins to get dictatorial complexes, you can read the pages of history and you will find that such a man always leads the people down the road to war.'"

"Why, in 1932, when he was nominated on one of the great liberal platforms of the age, the third-term candidate flew out to Chicago and said, 'I accept this platform one hundred per cent.' One of the provisions of that platform was to reduce the cost of government twenty-five per cent. You know what happened. I say again to you that if he reaffirms the platform of the Democratic party of 1940, pledging his party to keep out of war, then I hope he remembers his pledge of 1940 longer than he remembered his pledge of 1932. If he does not, some of these Maryland boys who are being called today in the draft will shortly be loading on to the transport."

Judge Future by Past

"You can only judge of a man's future actions by his past actions. And if he repudiates the planks of the 1940 platform the same as he did those of 1932, what way do you people then have to protect these boys that are being called into service today? People of Maryland, I wish I could stay here and talk to you all afternoon on this beautiful day. I feel as good as the day. As a matter of fact I never felt better in my life. My voice cracks once in a while, but I must remind you that the liberty bell is cracked, too. But I am going to keep ringing it right up to election night."

Police Receive Complaints On Hallowe'en Pranks

Numerous complaints about boys playing Hallowe'en pranks have been pouring into police headquarters during the past few weeks, but last night's list topped them all.

Desk Sgt. W. B. Lovenstein was kept busy answering the telephone and taking down information of and on.

Some of the calls included smearing vulgar language on automobiles with soap, throwing ink on a newly painted white house, throwing plaster of paris about and many others.

Police investigated, but found out that "lightning never strikes twice in the same place."

"Well, I say to you it is worth saying."

land, can have a job at decent wages. "It does a man no good to have the light of collective bargaining about a job he doesn't have," the speaker said.

"People of Cumberland, this is the last untouched land of freedom in all the world," Wilkie continued, "and we must keep it so and we can keep it so only if we can keep it strong, and the only way we can keep it strong is by making it productive."

Crowd Is Orderly

It was not a boisterous crowd that heard Wilkie yesterday afternoon. While his speech was punctuated by occasional bursts of applause, the big audience was intent and serious for the most part. Both men and women scattered throughout the crowd could be seen studying the candidate as he spoke. It is seldom that a crowd concentrates on a speaker in the manner yesterday's audience concentrated on Wendell Wilkie.

At the conclusion of the address, Mrs. Wilkie appeared briefly on the platform and was received once again with a thunderous burst of applause. She was followed by former Governor Harry W. Nice who was introduced just before the train started on its way to Martinsburg and Baltimore.

Yesterday's crowd represented a good cross section of the citizens in this area. It was composed of coal miners, textile workers, rubber workers, farmers, professional men, judges, housewives and hundreds and hundreds of young people, many of whom are probably voting for the first time this November.

Many Officers At Train

While over a hundred policemen were on hand, their work was made easy for them by the well-behaved audience. Chief Oscar A. Eyerman directed forty-four city policemen. The state police, trim and batty with boots glistering from so much polishing, were on hand. Captain Harry D. Schmidt directed a large number of railroad officers. This force was augmented by dozens of officers from nearby communities, as well as Sheriff Radcliffe and his deputies.

When the Special arrived, several officers including Lieut. James E. Van took lookout posts on the train shed and other elevated spots. These officers kept sharp watch for any signs of disturbance. There was no trouble. A few occasional jeers from various sections of the audience were the only discordant notes.

Just before the train arrived, Mayor Harry Irvine, in a radio address, urged that Western Maryland show these distinguished guests our mountain hospitality.

A large delegation from Baltimore was prominent at the station yesterday. The group in Cumberland to greet the presidential nominee and boarded the train before it left for Baltimore where Wilkie made one of the major addresses of his campaign last night. The Baltimore delegation was composed of Mayor Calloway, W. David Tighman, William F. Broening, Harry W. Nice, Theodore R. McKeldin, H. Webster Smith, Mrs. Elvin Bond, Mrs. Lulu Powell, Glen Tait, John A. Janetzke Jr., Daniel Ellison, Lawrence Childs, Charles Ruzicka, Kirk Landon, Wallace Williams, Paul Robertson, William Semans and Willard Allen.

Firemen Called Out

Central firemen were called yesterday at 8:58 a. m. to Sam's Cut Rate Wallpaper store, 113 North Mechanic street, when a defective fuse in the basement caused a joint to catch fire. No damage was caused.

Poor Ventilation

If the environment of the experimental animal is changed if one group is brought up in conditions of cold resembling the Northern winter and another in conditions resembling our Southern climate the reaction to organisms differ. This is paralleled by observations that mastoditis is all over the country a winter and spring disease. The peak is reached after a gradual rise beginning in December and January until in March the largest number of cases is found. Then the incidence begins to drop.

That's a life-size cutout of the Republican presidential candidate beside him. Louis, touring the country for Willkie, will introduce him at a Harlem election-eve rally.

Willkie Praises GOP Candidates,
Raps New Deal in W. Va. Visit*Presidential Nominee Boosts Sweeney and Dawson at Clarksburg

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Oct. 30 (AP) — Wendell Willkie left West Virginia tonight after thrusting at the Roosevelt administration for two days during which he constantly emphasized the local bearing on his remarks about national policies.

Before the special train rolled over the border into Maryland, the Republican presidential nominee also took occasion to boost the party's principal candidates in the state—Thomas B. Sweeney of Wheeling for United States Senate and D. Boone Dawson of Charleston for governor.

While Willkie wound up his West Virginia tour at Martinsburg, Sweeney and Dawson made ready to resume their individual campaigns suspended during the party leader's visit.

With the Republican standard bearer gone, considerable attention also was devoted to the projected radio broadcast tomorrow night by President Van A. Dittmer of United Mine Workers District 17, who is expected to state the position of West Virginia UMW officials on John L. Lewis' advocacy of Willkie.

Bittrner has indicated he will definitely oppose the stand of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, president, who also heads the UMWA. West Virginia CIO unions are on record in support of President Roosevelt.

Willkie made his appeal for support of Sweeney and Dawson in an extemporaneous address during a short stop at Clarksburg today. He included H. Roy Vaughn of Buckhannon, candidate for the House of Representatives in the Third Congressional district.

Typical of the manner in which Willkie applied local angles to his speeches on national issues was the Charleston address in which he charged Mr. Roosevelt with neglecting the South Charleston naval ordnance plant when it could have been produced for national defense.

At Clarksburg it was the glass plants; at Grafton he mentioned a desire to keep all of labor's social gains and referred to railroads and pottery workers; in Martinsburg Willkie spoke of the Eastern Panhandle orchards and fruit packing industry.

The candidate, who made several references to the "unexpectedly" warm welcome he received, addressed a crowd estimated by Police Chief Jules Brasseur at between 25,000 and 30,000 at Clarksburg. Police Chief A. E. Lockard estimated 7,000 heard Willkie at Grafton.

U. S. Senator M. M. Neely, the Democratic gubernatorial nominee, continued his campaign without interruption during Willkie's visit. He spoke at Hinton this afternoon and went to Beckley tonight.

Dawson went to Philippi for a speech tonight while Sweeney made an address at Weston.

Medical Board
For Five Counties
Named by Holt*Doctors Picked To Examine Draftees; Other News of Moorefield

MOOREFIELD, W. Va., Oct. 30 — Governor Homer A. Holt has announced the medical advisory board for the Seventh district of West Virginia, comprising the counties of Hardy, Grant, Hampshire, Mineral and Pendleton.

Governor Holt appointed Dr. O. V. Brooks, Moorefield; Dr. V. L. Dyer, Petersburg; Dr. Thomas Beas, Keyser; Dr. T. C. Giffin, Keyser; Dr. James F. Easton, Romney; and Dr. R. L. Thacker, Franklin.

The medical advisory boards determine the physical qualifications of the registrants under the conscription bill after their names have been drawn for service. The state of West Virginia is divided into seventeen districts. The physicians, internists, dentists and specialists making up the medical advisory board have the authority to call in additional help if needed.

Scout Officials Meet

Scout executives and officials of the South Branch district of Potomac Council met with Ray Laylor, scout executive of Cumberland, at the Hotel McNeill Monday night to discuss Scout problems relating to registration and administration of the various troops.

Present were Judge H. M. Calhoun, vice-chairman of the South Branch district, who presided in the absence of William Michael, Scoutmaster L. R. Grover represented Moorefield with Judge Calhoun. From Romney were Scoutmaster David Shear and Scoutmaster Fred L. Sparks. From Petersburg were Scoutmaster Paul Allen and Assistant Scoutmaster Dick Thompson.

Tuesday, November 26, was fixed as the date for the annual district meeting and banquet which will be held at Moorefield. Dr. A. E. Krause, Romney, will be the principal speaker.

It was decided to hold district meetings monthly in the three South Branch counties of Hampshire, Hardy and Grant, with two-hour conferences, one hour to be devoted to business and administration and one hour to Scout training.

R. C. Hall, Elkins, state commander of the American Legion, was in Moorefield Sunday afternoon making a routine visit and inspection. Accompanying Hall were Stanley Hamrick, state adjutant, Charleston, and George Kanode, Piedmont, district commander.

Approximately twenty members of the Moorefield post attended the meeting in Dr. O. V. Brooks' office, and a discussion was held on Americanism, child welfare work and the securing of new members for the Moorefield post.

DAR Meeting

Mrs. H. K. Owens, Elkins, was guest of honor at the D. A. R. meeting Saturday at the home of Mrs. H. M. Calhoun and gave a report to the ladies of the South Branch Valley chapter of the dedication of the amphitheater at Jackson's Mill. Mrs. Owens, who was chairman of the committee in the state, read the paper which presented the amphitheater to Governor Holt and the state of West Virginia and which will be of benefit to 5000 boys and girls each year.

The project was begun in 1937 and West Virginia D. A. R.'s contributed $3,500.

The organization of Children of the American Revolution was discussed. There are already 3,000 members in the state, and these children at the age of twenty-one automatically become members of the Sons & Daughters of the American Revolution.

Mrs. Myth Dyer, regent, gave her annual report. Mrs. I. D. Smith, Petersburg, accompanied by Mrs. H. M. Calhoun, presented a violin selection and Miss Alice Heiskell and Mrs. Calhoun, who were delegates to the recent state conference in Morgantown, gave a report.

Admitted to Bar

Among the seventy-five students who were recently admitted to the Maryland bar was Floyd Mathias, Mr. Rainier, Md., a former resident of Hardy county.

Mr. Mathias, who has been living in Maryland some years, began studying law at George Washington university night school while he was employed in the government in Washington. When he lived in West Virginia, he was a school teacher.

Six Injured when Trolley Jumps Track; Rock Blame

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., Oct. 30 (AP) — Six passengers of a southbound Wheeling — Moundsville interurban car suffered minor injuries today when it jumped the track five miles from Moundsville.

Officials of the Cooperative Transit Company said a rock, loosened by heavy rains, rolled onto the track.

The injured, all residents of Benwood, McMechen and Wheeling, were given first aid treatment at a hospital and sent home.

'Hitch-Hiking' Raccoon Reported at Moorefield

MOOREFIELD, W. Va., Oct. 30 — A "hitch-hiking" raccoon was reported today by Earle Weese, of Baas.

The other evening, Weese, rowing across the river in a boat, noticed something swimming along nearby. Paddling over to it, he found it to be a coon, apparently headed for the Weese coon field from the opposite bank.

The coon calmly climbed into the boat and perched himself on the middle seat, turning from time to time to look at his benefactor on the rear seat.

When the boat neared the shore, the animal left his seat and moved to the bow. And when the boat reached shore, he hopped out and trotted away.

Draft Registrants*Accident Man Holds No.
158; Other News from Grantsville Area

GRANTSVILLE, Oct. 30 — Wilmer Margroff, Accident, whose number was 158, headed the list of Garrett countians drawn yesterday in the draft lottery.

Others in this section who were included in the list are: 766, Henry P. Michael; 1854, Daily Bowser; 1234, Kenneth R. Wagaman; 678, Ellis Durs; 1396, Charles G. McKeehan, all of Grantsville; 689, Harvey H. Crowe, Avilton; 1904, Herbert Buckel; 1950, Lawrence Beitzel, Bittering; 1905, Harry Hoover, Jennings; 1801, Raymond Klotz; 1936, Howard S. George, Accident; William E. Griffith, Somerset; 172, Erman Savake; 138, Simon P. Wright; 183, Orval T. Butler; 1373, Mason J. Rodeheaver; 83, Merle J. McClintock, Friendsville.

H. T. Bittering Dies

Harry Thomas Bittering, 35, died at his home near here yesterday. He had been suffering for some time from chronic nephritis.

He was born near here July 3, 1905, a son of Silas Franklin and Mary Maude Miller Bittering. He was unmarried and made his home with his parents. Surviving, besides his parents, are one brother, Lewis Bittering; and one sister, Mrs. Sherman Hare, J. E. Walls conducted funeral services this morning at the St. Bethany Church of the Brethren, and interment was in the adjoining cemetery.

GOP Rally Friday

Final plans have been completed for the Republican rally to be held in the school auditorium at 8 o'clock Friday evening. The Accident band will be on hand to furnish music for the occasion and will also give a short concert in town before the session opens. The Grantsville high school Glee club will also entertain during the short intermission between talks.

Col. George Henderson, Cumberland attorney and former mayor, will deliver the principal address, and Walter W. Dawson, Oakland, and other prominent Republicans of the county are also scheduled to make short talks. Since Democrats as well as Republicans are invited to attend this meeting, and from all indications many of them plan to attend, a large crowd is anticipated and an old fashioned "get-together" is promised.

Grantsville Briefs

Lawrence Wiley suffered a painful injury to his right hand yesterday in an accident which occurred at the saw mill owned by Senator Clifford Friend at Fairview, where he is employed. In attempting to loosen a board which was stuck in the rollers of an edger, Wiley's hand was drawn between the rollers of the machine and the first joint of the second finger completely severed. He was hurried to the office of a local physician for treatment and later removed to his home at Jennings.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Weese, who have operated the Victoria hotel here for the past four years, are moving to Salisbury, Pa. Mr. Weese's mother died several weeks ago, and they will make their home with his father for the present. Mr. Weese plans to dispose of the lunchroom and beer parlor which he has been operating for some time and expects to open a business at Salisbury later. They will turn over the management of the hotel to the owner, Mrs. Maude B. Klock, November 1. Mrs. Klock is expected to arrive tomorrow from her home at Harrington, Del.

At the meeting of the Christian Endeavor Society last evening, plans were made for a Hallowe'en party to be held at the farm home of Mrs. Floyd Durs, Friday night. It is to be a masquerade affair, and prizes are to be awarded for the most original costumes. Games and music were arranged for entertainment during the evening. John Patton served as leader at last evening's session, and James Bracha (Continued on Page Fourteen)

36-Day Stay

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Oct. 30 (AP) — The scheduled execution of Paul Tross, negro, accused of criminally assaulting a white school teacher, was delayed another thirty-six days today when Governor Holt granted a third reprieve.

The order moved back to December 6 the execution date of the 41-year-old Keyser man, who was to have been hanged tomorrow night.

The governor said he granted the reprieve in order to study a plea for executive clemency. The order recited that Tross' attorneys have asked commutation of the death sentence to life imprisonment.

The action was taken after the United States Supreme Court declined to consider Tross' case. Two earlier reprieves had been granted — one to permit appeal to the State Supreme Court and the second to permit an appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court.

The state charged that the negro employed by a Keyser physician, had attacked the school teacher in her apartment June 2. Arraigned on the charge June 7 he pleaded innocent, but after withdrawing the plea on June 10, the day of his scheduled trial, Tross pleaded guilty.

Judge Robert McV. Drane sentenced him the following day to be hanged.

Tross had based his appeal on the contention that negroes were excluded from the grand jury which indicted him.

140 Attend Party
At Hyndman Church*Many Prizes Are Awarded at Methodist Hallowe'en Masquerade

HYNDMAN, Pa., Oct. 30 — Approximately 140 persons attended the masquerade Hallowe'en party last night in the social hall of the Methodist church. Prizes were awarded to Howard Burkett, Mrs. Claude Brotemarkle, Patsy Diehl, and Neal Thomas.

Hyndman Briefs

Prof. Roscoe Wareham sponsored a Hallowe'en party at the school building Tuesday night for the members of the freshman class of the high school. Sixty-five of the students were present. The evening's fun consisted of games, music and stunts. The decorations and refreshments were in keeping with the Hallowe'en spirit.

The Rev. John H. Buffenmyer, Adams street, has been re-elected for another year as pastor of Potomac Park Community church, near Cumberland.

Among those from Hyndman who attended the Josef Hoffman concert at Johnstown Monday night were Misses Genevieve Fries, Mary Meyers, Mary Miller, Alberta Kuhnman, Florence Hersherberg and Dorothy O'Roke. The first five are members of the teaching staff of the public school here.

Out-of-town people who attended the funeral of Mrs. Elsie A. Beck here Tuesday afternoon were Harrison E. Lemmert, Oren Lemmert and Mrs. Oscar Savage, Frostburg; Mr. and Mrs. John Steele, Leroy Steele, Miss Annie Steele and Mrs. Ellen Porter, all of Zihlman, Md. and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Poorbaugh, Glencoe.

Mr. Charles Dwyer is out again, the cast having just been removed from an ankle that she broke about eleven weeks ago. She was obliged to use crutches for much of this time.

The Rev. and Mrs. John H. Buffenmyer and daughter returned Monday after visiting the Rev. and Mrs. John A. Buffenmyer, the former's parents, in Cambria county.

Mrs. Ida Evans and son, Theodore, returned Monday to Conellsville after visiting relatives and friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Shaffer and family, Duquesne, and Miss Virgie Shaffer, Pittsburgh, were Tuesday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Noel.

Riley Hook, Rainsburg, was a dinner guest Tuesday of Mr. and Mrs. William Burkett.

Brookfield, Mo. (AP) — Harry Robertson thought there must be a catch when he discovered someone had scattered 30 shiny silver dollars about his potato patch one night. He sent a sample to the treasury department and Uncle Sam pronounced it a genuine, minted dollar.

If you're wondering why anyone would be scattering dollars in a potato field, your guess is as good as Robertson's.

Switzerland Boasts Biggest Coincidence

ST. GALLEN, Switzerland (AP) — Saint Gallen newspapers claim to have unearthed the biggest coincidence of the year.

They report that a French Alsatian sergeant named Francois Heidegger, interned in a Swiss camp when he crossed the frontier one jump ahead of the German advance last July, was transferred to a new prison camp in St. Gallen recently.

While walking in the forest near his camp he found a warped old oak bearing the name, carved all most seventy years ago, "Francois Heidegger, 1871." It was cut by his grandfather who fled into Switzerland one jump ahead of the Prussians in the Franco-Prussian war and was interned in the same village.

Willkie Declares*GOP Nominee Praises Railroad Retirement Act in Keyser Talk

KEYSER, W. Va., Oct. 30 — Speaking from the rear platform of his special train during a 10-minute stop at this afternoon Wendell Willkie, Republican presidential nominee, told a crowd of an estimated 1,000 listeners that "this is the last untouched land of freedom," but warned that it is imperiled by the "indispensable man" theory.

His voice hoarse, the candidate said, "When a man, regardless of how good his intentions, begins showing symptoms of desiring power, dispense with him. This is the last untouched land of freedom, but it will go when a people become enamored of any one man."

Noting that Keyser is a railroad town, he mentioned the railroad retirement act and the wages and hours law as well as other legislation affecting workers. "I am for all of those laws," he declared.

"You people of Keyser, before you vote consider well, and vote only one way," he concluded.

Mrs. Willkie was first introduced from the platform and was presented a large bouquet of chrysanthemums. She retired to the rear of the platform while the candidate spoke.

The crowd, which contained a large number of school children, was orderly.

Mr. Willkie's train was enroute from Clarksburg to Cumberland.

GOP Rally Tonight

Plans were completed today for the Republican rally at the high school auditorium tomorrow (Thursday) night at 8 o'clock.

Principal speaker will be Pitt Campbell, former congressman from Kansas, and ex-speaker of the House of Representatives, now a Washington, D. C. lawyer.

Others scheduled to speak include Daniel Boone Dawson, candidate for governor; Judge Summers Sharp, candidate for the Second district seat in the House of Representatives; J. A. Eyster, nominee for State Senate; and other state and county candidates.

A big parade at 7 o'clock will precede the rally. It will form at the school, march through the city and return to the school.

Parade at Barton Marks Hallowe'en

BARTON, Oct. 30 — Hallowe'en celebrations tonight paraded over the principal streets of Barton in a parade sponsored by Barton Hose Company No. 1. Following the parade prizes were awarded the marchers in the Armory.

In cooperation with the firemen, the Ladies Auxiliary presented an entertainment and served refreshments in the Armory during the round and square dance.

General chairman Donald Wilson was in charge of the affair.

The Barton Citizens band led the marchers over the mile-long parade route.

Boy Injured

Paul Metz, seven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Metz, second grade pupil at Barton school, was injured Monday at noon in front of Jess Anderson's store. It is understood that the boy ran into the street and was struck by a passing motorist.

He was treated at the office of Dr. Samuel Boucher and removed to his home. His condition is not regarded as serious.

Club Organized

A group of young girls from Barton and surrounding towns, met at the home of Miss Angulus Mowbray and formed a club, naming it the "Y. G. club."

Officers are Doris Kyles, president; Lillian Lashbaugh, vice-president; Ella Lee Shubart, secretary, and treasurer; and Kathleen Bailey, publicity agent.

The club will meet again Wednesday, November 6, at the home of Miss Cathryn Gannon, Bank street.

Hallowe'en Party

The Past Councilors club of the Daughters of America held a Hallowe'en party at the Odd Fellows Hall, Monday evening. Prizes were awarded to Mrs. Maude Kirk, Mrs. Florence Evans, Mrs. Richard Wright and Mrs. Jack Saville for costumes worn.

About sixty-five merry-makers in attendance, to spend the evening in playing games and presenting a variety of musical numbers. Refreshments were served.

Frostburg College Completes Plans For Homecoming

State Teachers Extends Invitations to 1,200 Alumni for Nov. 9

FROSTBURG, Oct. 30.—State Teachers college has issued invitations to more than 1,200 of its alumni to return for the annual homecoming Saturday, November 9.

At 9 o'clock Saturday morning, the college boosters will meet at the Carnegie Tech. hall from Pittsburgh. During the morning, the faculty will be available for conferences with returning alumni.

At 1:30 in the afternoon on the athletic field, the first annual tug-of-war between the freshmen and sophomores will be waged under the direction of the senior class. The freshmen class will be permitted to discard their rag hats if they win the tug of war; otherwise an extension of one week will be enforced.

From 2 to 4 o'clock in the auditorium, there will be a frolic for students, faculty and alumni, sponsored by the senior class.

At 6 o'clock, there will be three dinner groups—the Iota Alpha Sigma fraternity at Layman's farm; the Young Women's Christian Association in the college dining hall; and a stag party at one of the local hotels. At 9 o'clock, the annual Homecoming dance will be held in the college auditorium.

Little Theater Initiation

The Little Theater, under the direction of Miss Margaret LaFar and Miss Ruby Dahlgren, held its annual initiation in the college auditorium this evening.

The new members are Marvin Bell, Mary Barnes, George Chidester, James Davis, John Dunkle, Martha Eby, Hannah Golladay, Charles Gower, Mary Kenney, Thelma Manahan, William Moody, Lloyd Noland, Paul Morgan, Robert Ritchie, William Ryan, Betty Stewart, May Welch and Ann Stanton.

The first play sponsored this year was "The Eligible Mr. Banks" presented. The cast included Charles Gower, Eleanor Elsie Shirley Gattens and Ann Stanton. The next play will be on November 9, when "Who Gets the Car Tonight" is being given for the Maryland Congress of Parents and Teachers.

The dramatic work at the college has grown in interest and in seriousness and its membership includes students who have had a great deal of dramatic work through their four years of high school.

The officers of the Little Theater are: Dwight Roy, president; Harold Mesman, vice-president; Earle Savage, treasurer; and William Houck, secretary.

'Independents' Hold Deciding Votes At Frostburg College, Poll Shows

Students Divided almost Equally between Two Major Parties

FROSTBURG, Oct. 30.—The Current Events Club and the government class at State Teachers college, working under the supervision of Miss Louise Shaffer and George Carrington, history instructors, are conducting a straw vote of the students on the coming election.

Monday's assembly was devoted to a discussion of the main issues of the campaign.

The following participated: Elizabeth Everline, Republican Representative; Walter Hedrick, Democratic Representative; Lloyd Noland, "How to Defeat Propaganda"; and Dorothy Rollins, moderator.

Yesterday was registration day at the college. One hundred and ninety-seven students registered—eighty-six Democrats, eighty-five Republicans, twenty-two Independents and four Socialists.

Election day will be held next Monday, November 4. The election will be conducted according to Maryland election laws.

Students Take Charge

The students of State Teachers college had an unusual experience Friday when they were given entire charge of the work of the college for the day.

Many members of the faculty attended the meetings of the State Teachers Association in Baltimore, and others who were unable to attend these meetings were absent from the campus in order that students might be given an opportunity to direct their work under their own power.

Joseph Shockley, president of the Student Congress, took over the responsibilities of the presidents of the college. Dorothy Rollins, president of the House Council, was in charge of the general problems involving the recreational and social life of the resident students, and Watson Mowbray, president of the Day Council, took the responsibility for the day students' general life.

Faculty members planned definitely with individual students or groups of students to handle all class work. All classes met regularly. Even the training school continued in session under student teacher leadership. Reports from the several groups have been quite favorable, and it shows that youth will assume leadership if an opportunity is afforded, college officials said.

Tackles Dominate "All-America" Line

Smashing Play of Candidates Marks Week-End Games

Nick Drahos of Cornell

Set Pace for All Opponents

Bob Reinhard Shows How To Play Position to Coast Fans

By HERB BARKER

NEW YORK, Oct. 30 (AP)—Smashing play by leading tackle candidates marked last week's performance by the nation's potential All-America football linemen.

Setting a pace for his rivals could match was big Nick Drahos of Cornell, a member of the 1939 All-America. This six-foot, three-inch stalwart from Long Island played 60 minutes of brilliant football against Ohio State. He was a tower of strength on defense and offense all day and place-kicked the Big Red's three extra points.

On the other side of the continent another great tackle prospect was doing a spectacular 60-minute job—Bob Reinhard, of California, who likewise towers six feet three inches. Regarded by many as that sector's finest lineman, Reinhard was a terror against Washington as the Golden Bears just missed scoring a tremendous upset. Reinhard, who does California kicking, averaged 47.7 yards and outbowed Washington's highly rated Dean McAdams.

Four Western Conference tackles were standouts on Saturday. Alf Wuter, Michigan, sophomore played both with Penn's offense all day. Alf Bauman of Northwestern was an immovable object in a line otherwise outplayed by Indiana. Mike Enich, Iowa, captain, played plenty of football against Minnesota whose sophomore, Dick Wildung, also looked good.

Piedmont's Eagles Down Cane Juniors

Piedmont, Va., Oct. 30.—The Piedmont Golden Eagles, who bowed recently to the Hurricane Juniors of Cumberland, reversed the setback with a 26-6 victory over the Maryland negro eleven here this week.

Shortly after the kickoff, the local negro crew drove to the Cane juniors where it was held for blocks and yards and the ball recovered by the Eagles' Vernon Martin who scampered over the goal for the first touchdown. Ed Coleman converted.

Early in the second period, Johnson, passed to Martin on the Cane three and on the next play, Johnson, logged the leather over. Neither team scored in the third stanza.

A pass from Johnson to Ed Coleman set up the third Eagle touchdown with Johnson again hitting pay dirt and Ed Coleman converting. In the closing minutes, the visitors took to the air and tallied on a Banks-to-Yates pass from the Piedmont 24. The winners completed five of 11 passes and the Cane four of 14.

The Eagles are open for games with other teams in this section. Chaps interested should write James Coleman, 7 Paxton street, Piedmont, Va.

Lineups:
Piedmont: Campbell, Brown, Hill, W. Coleman, Brown, Stewart, Sanders, Davis, Walker, Martin, Johnson, Ores, Johnson, Ores, Johnson, Ores.
Cumberland: Brown, Hill, W. Coleman, Brown, Stewart, Sanders, Davis, Walker, Martin, Johnson, Ores, Johnson, Ores.

Score by Periods:
Piedmont 26 6 0 0 32
Cumberland 6 0 0 0 6

Joe Louis Draws 2611 In Draft Lottery and Says He's Ready for Khaki

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 30 (AP)—Heavyweight champion Joe Louis, wearing a tan overcoat about the color of army khaki, said today he was ready to trade it for the uniform of a private or whatever they want to be that's best for the United States.

When he arrived here from Pittsburgh, Louis was informed he had drawn order No. 2611 in the draft lottery. His first comment was, "I wonder what number Max Baer drew."

Baer is scheduled to be one of Louis' future ring opponents. Louis said he had no reason to seek exemption and was ready to serve as soon as he was called.

Chicago Cardinals To Scout Packers

Chicago, Oct. 30 (AP)—The Chicago Bears and Cardinals National Football League teams are going to gang up on the Green Bay Packers Sunday.

The Cards, idle this week, will attend the Packers' pivotal battle with the Bears in a body to scout the pro champions in preparation for their game with Green Bay Nov. 10.

The Bears, fresh from a 37-21 shellacking of the New York Giants,

Overlin-Belloise Fight

Cause for Embarrassment

Released by North American Newspaper Alliance

By JOHN LARDNER

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—It is somewhat embarrassing to announce the approach of a middleweight championship fight Friday night between Ken Overlin and Steve Belloise. After all, the champion, Mr. Overlin, has already been beaten by Billy Soose since winning his title.

But it would be just as embarrassing to announce a middleweight championship fight involving the other champion, Tony Zale. Mr. Zale has also been beaten by Billy Soose since winning his title.

In fact I defy you to find a middleweight champion now in business who has not been beaten by Billy Soose.

That is Mr. Soose's problem. I hope he will eventually work it out. Meanwhile, let us consider this Overlin person, who has conspired to put his crown on the line at Madison Square Garden Friday night against young Belloise.

A Remarkable Fellow

Mr. Overlin is one of the most remarkable characters in boxing history. Young Belloise is less remarkable, being nothing more than a promising boy from the Bronx with nice manners and a good punch. Belloise has not had time enough to become as remarkable as Mr. Overlin, but if he goes on fighting for another fifteen years, I doubt whether he will ever match the achievements of the older gentleman in mixing pleasure with business.

Mr. Overlin is a latter-day Maxie Rosenbloom, with overtones of Harry Greb and Max Baer and Sinbad the Sailor. He is more cultured than Mr. Rosenbloom, but just as good on the dance floor.

He is not as damaging as Greb was in the ring, but he needs less sleep than Greb did. He is just as pretty as Mr. Baer, and talks just as much, but says more.

Furthermore, in a seven-year hitch in the U. S. Navy, he claims to have seen things that Sinbad never saw in his hitch in the Persian Navy.

This cultivated glib has fought 181 fights in thirteen years, and admits to losing ten or twelve of them, owing to circumstances over which he had no control.

"I lost a home-town decision to Teddy Yarosz in Pittsburgh one year," says Mr. Overlin modestly, "so the next month I went over and lost a home-town decision to Kid Tureno in Paris, just to make everybody happy. Paris is something like Rangoon. Did I ever tell you—"

Between shore leaves, Mr. Overlin was the middleweight scourge of the U. S. fleet. He won the championship of the Navy by knocking out a tired sailor named Frankie Remus in 1934. A knockout is a rare bloom in Mr. Overlin's life, so he remembers the occasion well.

Nobody Hits Him

"Frankie was a little fragile," says Mr. Overlin. "I don't hit much, but who hits me?"

The answer is, practically nobody. The same was true of Maxie Rosenbloom, and the training methods of Mr. Rosenbloom and Mr. Overlin have much in common. Both have been seen in gymnasiums, but never when they could help it.

Mr. Rosenbloom once told me that the last time he had gone to a gym was to visit a sick friend. He was fighting once a week at the time.

Mr. Overlin fights only about once a month nowadays. That is enough to keep him in shape, combined with his strenuous exercise on the floors of this night club and that one. To get around the average night club dance floor, steering a 120-pound partner, without being bumped is the best practice in the world. It is like practicing your putting on a green with two-inch cups.

When you get out on a real golf course, the sup looks as big as a volcanic crater. In the same way when Mr. Overlin gets out there in an 18-foot ring, with no partner to impede him, you cannot touch him with a lasso. He won his title by going off and hiding from Cefelino Garcia, who searched the joint from roof to cellar for fifteen rounds without finding Kenneth.

Opposing Mr. Overlin Friday night will be an earnest, clean-cut young man who has spent practically every waking hour of the last two years in gymnasiums, sweating away at his trade. Steve Belloise is a youth with a mission.

If Steve gets licked by the Navy's light-footed man about town, I won't blame him if he sells his mission for two bits and goes off to some hellhole and gulps down a lemonade, double strength.

Screwly Gridiron News of Week Has Finger on Alias

Player 450 Miles Away

Got News of Great Way He Was Playing

By BILL BONI

NEW YORK, Oct. 30 (AP)—Being No. 2, Vol. II, of "Screwly News of the Gridiron."

Credit this one to Harvey Harman. Harvey's Rutgers team was back in the huddle during the Princeton game. The quarterback called a play, and one of the ends turned to the big tackle who played beside him.

"Remember, Joe," said the end, "this is the play where you pull out of the line and then..."

"Say, I'd almost forgotten," broke in the tackle. "Remind me again when we get up on the line will you?"

Down in San Antonio, Tex., they built a new $600,000 stadium this year, fitted with an electric scoreboard that could register scores as high as 99 to 99. The second time the St. Mary's battlers played in the park they "broke the board," running up a 100-0 score against the 23rd Infantry, Fort Sam Houston.

The disgruntled scoreboard attendant just made it "00 to 0" and got ready to start all over again.

Paul Altemand, Tulane halfback, didn't make the trip to Chapel Hill for the North Carolina game. But he listened in to a broadcast back home in New Orleans. Early in the fourth quarter the youngster almost fell out of his chair as the announcer proclaimed:

"There goes Altemand, around for five yards."

For the next 10 minutes Altemand cheered himself hoarse while 450 miles away in Kenan Stadium, Bubber Ely, whose own jersey had been torn and who put on Altemand's played "under an alias" against the Tarheels.

The Texas Aggies, who featured the line-cracking of All-America John Kimbrough, lined up for a play against Baylor. One of the Aggie guards looked across at a Baylor lineman, and said:

"Listen, Bud, I don't know what your plans are on this play, but if you feel like I do you'll get the hell out of the way. Big John Kimbrough's coming right here."

Alfred on Upgrade

New York, Oct. 30.—Alfred University, once a doormat, is on the upgrade now that it is playing football in its own class. Going into the Brooklyn College game, Alfred was unbeaten and had repelled Cortland Normal, St. Lawrence, Hofstra and Buffalo.

The Sportlight by GRANTLAND RICE

(Released by North American Newspaper Alliance)

This has been a magnificent football season, so far, in the victorious marches of Minnesota, Michigan, Cornell, Notre Dame, Northwestern, Texas A. and M., Tennessee and a few others. They hold the uplands and deserve their place.

But there is a touch of sadness for the old guard who know their football tradition and have followed the beaten path for thirty or forty years. There is a note of dejection as they turn to the football fate of Yale, Illinois, Army, Harvard, Dartmouth and a few others who in the past have written so much of football's dramatic book, who have given so much to the game.

Too many in the football crowds today have forgotten the great teams these institutions have sent to the field—some of the greatest. They know only today.

I was looking over such scores as these:
Pennsylvania 50, Yale 7, Virginia 19, Yale 14, Navy 21, Yale 0. Yale 21 points, opponents 90 points—with Cornell and others still to come.

U. S. C. 13, Illinois 0, Michigan 28, Illinois 0, Notre Dame 26, Illinois 0. Total again—Illinois 7, opponents 67.

Army 0, Cornell 45, Army 0, Lafayette 19. All-season total—Army 26, opponents 99, with Notre Dame just ahead.

There is Franklin and Marshall 23, Dartmouth 21, There is Princeton 69, opponents 77. There is Harvard 25, opponents 39.

Where are Coy, Grange, Tack Hardwick, Dooley, Oberlander, Chris Cagle, McEwan, Frank, Mal Stevens, Harry Wilson, Ed Garbisch, Casey, Brickley, Masters, on and on, and on?

And the sad part is that the worst is still beyond—Army must face Notre Dame, Brown and Pennsylvania before it meets Princeton and Navy. Yale and Dartmouth must tackle Cornell, while the latter, as far as playing strength is concerned and beyond the clemency that may be shown, is at least 60 points better.

The Big Nine Schedules
The Big Nine, with a few exceptions, takes the rougher road today. As Bo McMillin puts it, they live on the red meat diet.

Minnesota, Michigan, Northwestern, Indiana, Ohio State, Iowa, Wisconsin, Purdue and Illinois all play from six to eight rugged, high-class opponents in schedules that know almost no intermission. Their 1940 tests are far harder than those faced by Notre Dame, Cornell, Tennessee, Boston College, Georgetown and many others among the unbeaten.

What about the Pacific Coast? U. C. L. A. has tackled a suicide job—terrible. But so far leading Pacific coast teams have lost all their hard games to Minnesota, Texas A. and M., Michigan, and S. M. U.

No one can say which is the country's best football team. But I should say that the surviving team from Minnesota, Michigan and Northwestern, still untied and unbeaten, will at least have turned in the season's finest job.

It is an unusual break that all three must meet one another. Michigan meets Northwestern and Minnesota. Minnesota meets Michigan and Northwestern. Northwestern meets Michigan and Minnesota, plus Notre Dame.

No matter how other sectors may feel about it, there is the true storm center of 1940 football, and only Michigan, Minnesota or Northwestern can have any call on the mythical national ranking.

However good any other team may be, the only answer can come from one hard game after another. Cornell, Notre Dame, Tennessee, Boston College, Georgetown, Detroit and Clemson may be just as strong, but their schedules have given them little chance to prove it. Texas A. and M., among the national leaders, has had a harder row to hoe and rake, but not the hard way of those three leading the Big Nine, as all concerned turn into the backstretch heading for the wire.

The test of any ranking, beyond individual opinion, must be the type of competition the survivor has faced, although Cornell whipped Ohio State much more decisively than Northwestern or Minnesota did. Only a few soft spots are needed in any schedule to make a healthy difference in the ratings of the so-called powerhouse and those teams moving into difficult action week after week.

The Navy Revival
In the downfall of so many old-timers it is a cheerful note to see Navy return with one of the best teams that ever left the Severn. Whether Navy can stand off superior Pennsylvania man power this week or stop Notre Dame's gallop the week after, is another matter.

But so far Swede Larson has put a first-class Navy team on guard, a team good enough to give anyone a battle.

After her bewildered, jittery affair at Ann Arbor, Pennsylvania is due for a big change. Reagan won't be that bad again and the Red and Blue can't make as many mental errors, with no Harman acting as a haunting ghost. But Navy has been one of the underrated teams.

Two unbeaten teams which get tried in the balance once more include Clemson, facing Tulane, and Texas A. and M. meeting the Arkansas conquerors of Mississippi. You can add Stanford to this list against U. C. L. A.

On the nip-and-tuck side you can look to North Carolina and Fordham, two first-class squads which should be around their peak for a November start. In Severin and Lannen, North Carolina has two who

Two Open Dates on Wildcats' Schedule

Games with St. Mary's gridders, upper and lower Arch street and Mapleside appear on the Cunningham Wildcats' schedule with the next contest against Mapleside on the Wildcat field Saturday morning.

Two open dates are November 9 and December 7, and Coach Robert Cunningham and Vaptain Jack Reed hope to fill these soon.

Teams with players in the 8-12 year class, interested should phone or apply at 413 Rose street.

Last week, the Wildcats won their first game, defeating St. Mary's 32-12. Mahoney and Long did most of the scoring for the Cunningham outfit. The scheduled:

Nov. 2—Mapleside, home.
Nov. 16—St. Mary's, home.
Nov. 23—Lower Arch St., home.
Nov. 30—Lower Arch St., home.
Dec. 14—Upper Arch St., home.
Dec. 21—Mapleside, away.
Dec. 28—Upper Arch St., home.
Jan. 1—Mapleside, home.

Shaughnessy Gets Salute from Old Houdini of Grid

"Pop" Warner Says Rise of Tulane Is Tonic on West Coast

PAULO ALTO, Calif., Oct. 30. (AP)—Glen Schober, "Pop" Warner, the original "Houdini" of the gridiron, gave an admiring salute today to the man who is proving to Pacific Coast football that the hand is quicker than the eye—Clark Shaughnessy of Stanford.

As an early day exponent of deception (his 1907 Carlisle Indians were hiding the football up the backs of their jerseys), Warner expressed profound admiration for the way Shaughnessy's team has out-slicked five opponents, the latest being Southern California.

"Shaughnessy is entitled to the fullest credit for the phenomenal way he is making use of the 'T' formation," Warner said. "The formation is almost as old as football itself. We used it when I played at Cornell from 1892 to '94 and when I started coaching the next year at Iowa State and Georgia.

"The methods by which Shaughnessy gets so much deception from the formation is a tribute to his coaching strategy. He has given football out this way a tremendous lift. It is something new and a tonic for the game."

Warner, as a matter of professional courtesy, offered no possible solutions to the problem of "How To Stop Shaughnessy."

The SPORT TRAIL

By WHITNEY MARTIN
NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Sports Trail detours:

Carl Snively is being accused of everything from using short wave signals from the bench to stealing the clothes from the naked reverse, but we still think football games are won by the lads on the field. The theory is that the game should be played by the boys, both mentally and physically, and that when a coach starts to run the team by remote control he is taking it out of their hands.

This bench brainstraining is deemed unethical, yet it's perfectly legal for a coach to send in a stream of substitutes, each carrying a message concerning the play to call. The only difference is that a substitute must wait until a play is run off before he opens his trap. We saw Elmer Layden call the signals on a half-dozen consecutive plays in the Notre Dame-USC game last year, using players as carrier pigeons.

Speaking of Notre Dame, any day now we are expecting an advertisement like this to appear: For sale or long-time lease: One first team, slightly used. Apply Elmer Layden, Notre Dame.

Wheat and chaff: Two former professional baseball players, Dixie Howell and Hillman Walker, are on the coaching staff at Arizona State College, but the baseball coach at the school is Bill Kajioka, a Japanese. His brother fought Joe Louis, which may be the reason Quo Massera is confining his sports activities to playing plenty of guard on the University of Kansas football team. The brother, whose name was scrambled to Charley Massera, was out in the third round in his bout with the Bomber.

Tommy Harmon is getting so famous that soon we will be reading now, as an infant, he used to toddle around his "touchdown" instead of "daddy," but here's one touch that's true.

Doug Kerry, coach at Horace Mann high school at Gary, Ind., tells I. Harmon was an unknown Freshman at the school, and he reported for the first day's practice wearing a wad of bubble gum in a way that got under the skin of the coach, who told him to desist. Tom kept right on bubbling, and to each him a lesson Kerry ordered him into the second team backfield, figuring that the first team would push the gum right down his throat.

The first team kicked off, and, well, you know how it happens in the movies. Tommy caught the ball and ran it 90 yards for a touchdown, and from that point on he was a first-stringer, and could chew a piece of leather as far as Kerry was concerned.

North Carolina To Be Invaded over Week-End by State

Frostburg Booters Will Play Duke and High Point

Frostburg, Oct. 30.—Successfully defending their claim to the Maryland State Teachers' College soccer championship against Towson and Salisbury booters last week, Coach George Carrington's Frostburg State eleven will make a two-day invasion of North Carolina this weekend for games with Duke University at Durham Friday and High Point College Saturday at High Point.

Despite the loss of Bill Thomas, who was unable to make the trip, and injuries suffered by Fred Sacco, Bill Merriman and Joe Wagner, the Mountaineers managed to keep their record clear of defeat and jump ahead in the state race, last week.

Freshmen On Line
Very little practice is being held this week. Carrington hopes that with several days' rest, the injured players will be in condition for the North Carolina contests.

A light scrimmage session is scheduled today, and tomorrow at noon the squad will embark for Durham. Not much is known about the records of the Carolina teams, but in recent years, Duke and High Point have shared state championship laurels. Last year, Frostburg defeated High Point 3-0 in an invitational battle and laid claim to the southeastern title.

Carrington plans to use freshmen prospects on the line. Both Ed Athey, former Allegheny high athlete of Cumberland, and Jack Jenkins, erstwhile Bruce High brother of Westport, have impressed the Frostburg mentor and have won starting berths.

Next Home Game Nov. 9
Merriman and Sacco will be at fullback with Johnny Meyers and "Peck" Ewertout sure to fill their usual backfield posts. Hal Conrad, Jack Thomas and Bill Thomas will be used in starting roles with the rest of the lineup selected from Wagner, Houck and Shuff.

John Thomas will fill the goalies' shoes with Jake Carrington in reserve. Frostburg's next home game will be with Carnegie Tech, Saturday, November 9. This contest will be the annual homecoming attraction.

Tuesday Night Social
The Wallis and Wagner's won all three from the Cessna's and Jenkins; respectively, and the Gibbs grabbed two of three off the Shaffer's in Tuesday night Social League matches on the Savoy Alleys.

Fort Hill To Win As Allegany Loses Dopester Figures

W. Va. Forecaster Includes Local Teams in Pick for Week-End

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Oct. 30.—The "experts" can save time by picking Parkersburg to win from here on, for the Red Reds have just about won themselves another West Virginia scholastic football title.

There have been upsets before in such cases, but it appears now that none of the four teams Parkersburg still must play can hope to do much better than Huntington Central, which took a heat 20-0 white-washing last week.

That leaves a plucky Shinnston outfit, scheduled for Saturday at Parkersburg, definitely the underdog. But Floyd Schwartzwalder and his boys will see plenty of action, nevertheless.

There are some other undefeated teams in the state who might contest Parkersburg's claim to state honors among them Elkins, Bluefield and perhaps the Rebels of Mullens. Logan also is unbeaten.

So, with head bloody but unbowed, Weston at Elkins Friday night—The Minute Men are nobody's cinch, but take Elkins anyhow.

Elkhorn at Bluefield Friday—We like the Beavers of Bluefield to roll merrily along.

Glen Rogers at Mullens Friday—Now is the time for the Rebels to watch for over-confidence, what with having turned back unbeaten Beckley. The selection is Mullens.

Morgantown at Fairmont Tuesday night—Take this contest as a foretaste for the week among the spectators. They're closely matched, but make it Fairmont West.

Charleston at Beckley Friday—Another good game, and a close one. The Mountain Lions are heavier and the pick is Charleston.

Fairmont East at Fort Hill of Cumberland, Md., Saturday—Fairmont East needs heavier artillery. Fort Hill.

Charles, Town at Allegany of Cumberland, Md., Friday night—The Panthers improve with age. Charles Town.

Edwards Military Academy at Greenbrier M. S. Saturday—Still sticking with a good thing. Greenbrier.

Roxy Ladies' League

STANDING OF CLUBS

The Debs pushed their way to the front in the Roxy Ladies' League race this week when they scored a 3-0 victory over the Belles. The Debs had previously been tied for first with the Amazons but the latter club lost 2-1 to the Coeds. In the other match, the Maidens won the Damsels 3-0.

The Maidens shattered both the Coeds' team records, spilling 645 for one game and 1,851 for the set. The previous highs were 642 and 1,758. It was announced that the previous week, Elizabeth Rhoe broke the individual set record with 429 but that the feat had been overlooked.

Hitting 400 or better this week were Elizabeth Rhoe of the Debs with 416 and Dorothy Berkard of the Maidens with an even 400. The scores:

Rally in Steels Buys Market Some Issues Up Three Points

Rails, Motors and Oils Are
Strong

NEW YORK, Oct. 30 (AP)—Stocks moved forward today when a lift in steels buoyed a previous rise in the market.

Strength spread to virtually the whole lot, sending rails, motors and oils higher.

At the close, the Associated Press average of sixty selected stocks was ahead 3.4 of a point at 453.37, but some were up one to three points.

Transactions totaled 674,070 shares compared with 586,065 yesterday.

With a 3.4 points jump by Douglas as a stimulant, the aircrafts assumed an early lead supported by Boeing, United, Glenn Martin and Sperry. Steels moved irresolutely at a time then joined the rising tide, lifting the whole market.

Shares on the rising side included U. S. steel, Bethlehem, Republic Steel, Chrysler, General Motors, Santa Fe, Pennsylvania Railroad, Chesapeake & Ohio, Standard Oil of N. J., Texas Corp., Montgomery Ward, Woolworth, Harvester, Caterpillar, Westinghouse, Allied Chemical, Eastman, Kennecott, Phelps Dodge, Western Union and American Water Works.

In the Curb, where trading totaled 129,000 shares compared with 91,000 yesterday, gains included A. M. Castle, Allied Products, Grede Petroleum, Hill Aircraft, Mead Johnson, United Chemical, and Sherwin Williams.

He Finally Met The Police

SPARTANBURG, S. C. (AP)—A man, injured in a cutting affray, regained consciousness to find himself in a speeding ambulance which he took to be a police patrol wagon.

He slipped open the back door of the ambulance and made a hazardous escape.

Encounters a Snag

STOCKHOLM (AP)—Legislators kicked up a minor furor when, for the first time in the 500-year history of Swedish parliamentary history, no presiding officer was on hand.

The cautious legislative provisions are that, in the absence of the president of the lower chamber, one of two vice-presidents shall preside; in their absence, the oldest member shall take the chair.

Assembling legislators found, however, that none was on hand one day this month; not even the eldest.

An unofficial committee finally went to his office and brought back the eldest, an octogenarian, so business could proceed.

Smart Housecoat or Dress

Marian Martin
PATTERN 9550

Working lady... lounging lady—whatever your mood or occupation, you'll find this style useful and becoming. Designed by Marian Martin, Pattern 9550 makes a spirited cotton dress or a housecoat. It buttons smartly down the front—a decorative feature that's convenient for quick, flat-spread ironing and "hurry up" dressing too. The side sections of the skirt come high and smooth at the waistline. Isn't the curving line of the shoulder yokes attractive, with the nice gathered fullness below? The sleeves are long or short; there's a back skirt panel for extra fullness. You might add rick-rack and a front or back-tying sash. Make both of these styles, using the Sew Chart to speed you up.

Send fifteen cents in coins for this Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your size name, address, and style number.

Smart, exclusive style is yours—at low, sew-at-home cost—in the winter pattern book by Marian Martin. Dozens of easily made outfits for every purpose are colorfully presented, with stunning afternoon and after-dark frocks, trim tailored modes, gay sun or snow-bound vacation wear. There are office and campus wardrobes, workaday and "dress-up" styles for matrons of every age... vivacious young-world clothes. Order your copy now! Book fifteen cents. Pattern fifteen cents. Book and pattern together, twenty-five cents.

Sally Rand Will Present Famed Dances at Strand

Coming to the Strand theater tomorrow and Saturday, Sally Rand will present her famed fan and bubble dances.

Sally's career since she put the Chicago World's Fair on the map in 1933 has been meteoric to say the least, and so far it has shown no signs of diminishing.

Giving up school to begin her stage career when only thirteen years old, Sally has been one of the phenomena of theater history. Sally wanted her career more than anything else in life. She is a very determined girl who doesn't know the meaning of the word defeat. So she carried her battle forward till she eventually crashed overnight into the ranks of the headliners with her sensational appearance at the Chicago fair.

Even that and her ensuing success have not satisfied her. She is still battling, hoping for the greater glories the legitimate theater has to offer.

As soon as she experienced her first taste of nationwide fame, Sally decided that if her success was to be prolonged, she would need to be educated. She was forced to forego at 13. So she engaged tutors and with their help in the wee small hours of the morning after the theaters were closed, she has advanced to the point where she can now hold her own with any college graduate either academically or socially. And when it comes to business, she hasn't any superior in the United States.

On the screen will be "Night Train," a mystery drama.

Actor in 200th Role In Garden Feature

Harry Davenport, 74-year-old stage veteran who appears as Jean Arthur's father in Wesley Ruggles' Columbia comedy, "Too Many Husbands," now at the Garden theater with Fred MacMurray and Melvyn Douglas also starred, is considered "the youngest actor in Hollywood." His role in the madcap comedy is his 200th part since entering acting ranks sixty-nine years ago in Philadelphia.

A bandit steals the Cisco Kid's name! A crooked judge frames him and a lovely senorita crosses him up! But that is very unlikely for them because the colorful caballero is at his flightiest in "Lucky Cisco Kid." Cesar Romero has the title role in the Twentieth Century-Fox adventure film, which is now at the Garden theater.

Germany Solidly Behind Italy in War, Berlin Says

Axis Powers Inseparable, Authorized Spokesman Asserts

By LOUIS F. LOCHNER

BERLIN, Oct. 30 (P)—Germany is 100 percent on the side of Italy in the conflict with Greece, an authorized foreign office spokesman said today.

Italy's action, it was stated, is a manifestation of the Axis policy against England, and Italy and Germany are inseparable in their aims. The German press echoed these views, chorusing "the Greek decision." The newspapers said Greece tried to play a double game of convincing with England while pretending to be a friend of Germany.

They also recorded with interest that the United States undersecretary of state, Sumner Welles, had received the Greek minister in Washington, and that Britain's first lord of the admiralty, A. V. Alexander, had assured "our friends in Greece and America" that the British fleet will give Greece the greatest help possible.

Authorized sources spoke contemptuously of such British assurances, however, saying: "The few sentences spoken by the fueler during his 4,000-mile trip (through France to Spain and Italy) mean more than all this English twaddle; a few sentences by him have greater historical significance than six months of British diplomacy."

These same persons reiterated that "big events" are in the immediate offing, but they added that they could observe no indication that the Greek conflict would involve any other Balkan state. However, informed sources had hinted earlier that the Axis, in an endeavor to break Britain in the eastern Mediterranean, might hand Turkey an ultimatum such as the one which Greece rejected.

In any event, spokesmen insisted, the outcome of the present conflict will show that "any conception of England as a Mediterranean power is fiction."

Republican Cites

any longer than his pledge for sound money."

"If he is elected, on the basis of his past performances and pledges to the people you may expect war by April, 1941," Wilkie declared.

In his prepared text, he had written: "On the basis of his past performance with pledges to the people, why shouldn't we expect war by April, 1941, if he is re-elected?"

Sound Money Abandoned
Previously in his speech, the nominee said that the chief executive "had abandoned sound money" in April, 1933—"five months after the third term candidate had pledged himself to sound money."

The nominee had to change his glasses midway of his speech because the pair he wore became covered with perspiration.

Wilkie promised to work for "maintenance of peace in the Western Hemisphere" and declared he would not stand for any appeasement policy. Such a policy, he declared, "is the surest road to war."

The Republican presidential nominee said that it would take at least eighteen months to give the nation "even an inadequate" defense and that "under the New Deal it probably would take much longer than that."

Wilkie then outlined these six defense steps, which he said should be taken at once:

Wilkie's Defense Program
"First, we must make certain that there is no delay in providing housing for our new soldiers."

"Second, we must obtain supplies of raw materials which are not now produced in the United States—rubber, tin, and other things essential to national defense."

"Third, we must make defense weapons which we need and make them faster and in larger quantities."

"Fourth, we must hasten decision on the types of defense arms that we want industry to build. It is far better to have a large number of good and serviceable weapons on hand than it is to have a few dream ones on order."

"Sixth, we must devote congressional defense appropriations to defense purposes, instead of boondoggling them."

Saying that the maintenance of peace in this hemisphere would be his objective, Wilkie added that "three basic elements" were involved in the protection of America:

"Good faith in the pursuit of peace for this hemisphere; a wise and consistent diplomacy; and a strong military and naval defense force."

Mr. Roosevelt, he asserted, had either failed to act or had disregarded information supplied him by the state department regarding developments abroad.

"From 1933 to 1939," the nominee said, "he made no adequate move toward giving the United States modernized defense."

F. D. R. Pledges Broken
Asserting that Mr. Roosevelt had violated in April a 1932 Democratic platform pledge for sound money, Wilkie asked "whether his pledge for peace is going to last any longer than his pledge for sound money. "On the basis of his past performance with pledges to the people, why shouldn't we expect to be at war by April, 1941 if he is elected?"

The candidate said that Mr. Roosevelt had "made reckless flights into the field of diplomacy x x x x entirely on his own initiative" and had "contributed to the confusion of the world. x x x x"

"Statements of the third term candidate in 1939 led British observers to publish opinions that the United States would participate in a European war. These statements of the third term candidate were probably made with good motives. But they had that misleading effect."

The interests of the United States would have been better served if the third term candidate had been outspokenly for peace and non-participation at that time—instead of waiting to pledge it in an election."

The nominee said persons should consider the prospect of Europe after the war—a Europe suffering from unemployment and "severe devaluation." This country, he said, will have built a big armament industry and "we will have to readjust ourselves to the job of beating the swords back into plowshares."

All 14,000 seats in the fifth regiment armory were filled and many persons stood. Pictures of Wilkie hung about the balcony and a big sign read, "Welcome to Our Next President."

There was a loud cheer when Wilkie entered the hall with Mrs. Wilkie. Spectators in the balcony threw confetti.

The nominee jumped at once to the railing of the speaker's stand and waved to the crowd.

Introduced by Nice

Former Governor Harry W. Nice, of Maryland, now Republican senatorial candidate, introduced Wilkie, who said he commended Nice to the voters.

"You know it is a great thing," Wilkie began, "to receive such a welcome from one's prospective neighbors."

As Wilkie began his speech, there were loud shouts of "Roosevelt" from one section of the audience. He had to pause a moment before the shouts abated.

Wilkie was cheered loudly when he declared that Maryland had "debunked the New Deal" in 1938 by re-electing Senator Millard E. Tydings (D-Md), whom Mr. Roosevelt sought to defeat.

"You did well," the candidate added, "not only to rebuke the presumption of the purge, but to assure yourself of a good senator. Once again, I call upon you to rebuke the New Deal and reject its attempts to force its candidates upon you."

Two Ambassadors

gave in military inspection trips. My campaign trips are interfered with because I have to call up my secretary of state a dozen times a day."

"He must have to call up the secretary of state, because he couldn't call up the ambassadors. They are not on the job. They are like candidates for constable, seeking to have their jobs retained."

Wilkie, stopping on his way to Baltimore for a major address tonight, told his cheering Clarksburg listeners that President Roosevelt had said in the 1932 campaign that he still retained his sense of humor and his sense of proportion.

"The sense of humor has gone," Wilkie asserted.

Against Permanent Ruler
"Surely in this year 1940 we do not want to begin the doctrine of the permanent ruler in these United States."

Wilkie repeated his statement that Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City had told the president "good-bye, Frank, and lots of luck to you." "I am going to stop the firm of Frank and Frank in this campaign," he added. "I am going to do it with millions of free-born American citizens who won't be bought, who won't be controlled."

During a stop at Grafton, W. Va., Wilkie said that while the nation has a stake in affairs abroad, "I want to look, when I am in Washington, toward the mid-continent rather than always across the seas."

Wilkie, his voice still hoarse, arranged another heavy schedule of speechmaking for tomorrow. He will speak in Wilmington, Del., Chester, Pa., and Trenton, Plainsboro and Camden, N. J. In the latter city he will make a radio address (CBS) at 8:30 p. m. (EST).

Salvation Army Groups Have Hallowe'en Party At Constitution Park

The Hallowe'en party held last night at Constitution Park by the Women's Home League and two Sunday schools of the Salvation Army was attended by 150 persons.

Miss Mary Doll had charge of the recreation program which consisted of games for the children and a ghost hunt for the adults and young people.

what he called the Republican record on aid to farmers.

He said that Rep. Joseph Martin of Massachusetts, the Republican national chairman, who "may be slated for some cabinet post," had voted against "every single one of the farm measures recommended by this administration."

Nowhere in the prepared address did the president mention Wendell L. Wilkie, the Republican presidential candidate, by name.

At one point he said Rep. Martin was of "national interest" because, when he was appointed national Republican chairman, "this handsome verbal bouquet, this expensive orchid, was pinned upon him: 'In public life for many years, Joe Martin has represented all that is finest in American public life.'"

"Considering the source of that orchid," Mr. Roosevelt continued, "Martin may be slated for some cabinet post."

Attacks Martin's Record
"Martin voted against the public utility holding company act, the Tennessee Valley Authority, the National Securities Exchange Act, and the extension of the CCC. He voted against practically all relief and work relief measures, and against the appropriation for rural electrification."

Also, the president added, Martin had voted against the civil service extension act and against the United States Housing act.

After declaring that the Republican chairman had voted against every administration farm measure, he said:

"Perhaps he will be rewarded for this loyal service to the principles of his party, by being appointed secretary of agriculture."

Mr. Roosevelt said Republicans in Congress had been acting as a "party" team, when what the country needed was an "all-American team."

Saying these "side line criticisms" were now saying that "we are not doing enough for our national defense," he contended that the defense program was going "full speed ahead" and that "the vast majority of Republican members of the Congress voted against building any additional battleships" when the naval expansion bill was under consideration in 1938.

"What kind of political shenanigans are these?" he demanded, employing a phrase he has used repeatedly.

Ridicules Republicans
Mr. Roosevelt declared that Republicans had done nothing between 1929 and 1933 to stop the decline of farm income, the piling up of surpluses and the increase of farm debts.

He said Republicans were "ridiculous" when they shed "crocodile tears over the plight of the farmer."

Before every election day, he continued, the Republicans "always uncorked the old bottle of soothing syrup and spread it thick."

"The American farmers will not be deceived by pictures of old guard candidates, patting cows and pitching hay in front of moving picture cameras," Mr. Roosevelt declared.

"All the sweet words of the Republican leaders in Philadelphia last June—they were not worth the paper they were written on."

"For listen to this. Last summer, only a few weeks after the Republican national platform had been adopted endorsing commodity loans for the farmers, the Republican members of the House marched right back into the halls of Congress and voted against commodity loans for the farmers. They voted against them by a vote of 106 to 37."

He said farm income this year was "just about double" what it was in 1932.

Gives Credit to Wallace
"And we all know how much this is due to the patient efforts and practical vision of Henry Wallace," the president added, referring to his vice presidential running mate.

"Parity—the proper relationship between agriculture and the rest of our economy—will continue to be our guiding principle."

Addressing remarks to "you mothers and fathers" of selective service trainees, he expressed assurance that their boys would be well housed and that "your boys are not going to be sent into any foreign wars."

Mr. Roosevelt denounced as the "most inexcusable unpatriotic misstatement of fact about our army" the "brazen charge that the men called to training will not be properly housed."

Since the day when Poland was invaded, he declared, the United States had more than doubled the size of the regular army. He said the navy's "record" was: "in 1933 a weak navy; in 1940 a strong navy."

Aircraft Production Up
He asserted, too, that aircraft production had "jumped" and the engine output had climbed 240 percent in ten months.

Telling listeners that he was letting them in on a secret, he said he was "enjoying this campaign."

Tragedies of the "distracted" world had weighed heavily "upon all of us," the chief executive continued, but "there is revival for every one of us in the sight of our own national community."

After his address tonight, Mr. Roosevelt arranged to leave immediately by special train for Washington, where he is scheduled to dedicate the national institute of health before leaving the capital again to speak at Brooklyn, N. Y., Friday night.

Ronald Hebb Is Hurt
Ronald Hebb, 22, of Wellersburg, Pa., was treated Tuesday at Allegheny hospital after he cut his left foot while chopping wood with an ax.

He was discharged after treatment.

Garrett Board Hires Attorney To Clear Titles of 200 Properties

The board of commissioners of Garrett county has engaged Horace P. Whitworth, Jr., attorney, to clear titles to about 200 county properties formerly sold for taxes and resold and whose titles have been declared void.

The move is the result of an opinion handed down by Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan in September. Judge Sloan declared the titles to the properties were void and their sale invalid.

The court's opinion affecting the properties represented a reply to a request for court ratification of a sale made by the Garrett board to Clarence R. Paugh in July. Paugh paid $5 for ten acres of land in election district No. 4, Garrett county. The property had been assessed to Samuel Warnick and while so assessed had been sold at a treasurer's tax sale to the Garrett board.

It is reported that a marked decrease in Dutch elm disease was found in all of the infected areas with the exception of a few places in New York and Pennsylvania just beyond the main zone of infection, which covers about 5,000 square miles in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York and Connecticut.

Dutch elm disease is a fungus disease that has destroyed practically all elm trees in Europe. It came to the United States between 1925 and 1933, on burl elm logs imported from Europe by cabinet makers in the middle west.

It is carried from tree to tree by insects, particularly the smaller European elm bark beetle and the native bark beetle, which lay their eggs in shallow tunnels beneath the bark. As soon as the new foreign disease had been diagnosed in 1934, the United States Department of Agriculture, in cooperation with state agencies, started the only control operations possible—discovery and destruction of every diseased tree to remove all sources of infection.

Failure To Abate A Nuisance Here Leads To Arrest

George Martz, 626 North Mechanic street, yesterday morning was the sixth property owner to be arrested since Tuesday for allegedly failing to abate a nuisance after being given notice.

Martz is accused of failing to connect his property to the city sewer, a violation of Chapter 8, Section 2D, Paragraph 17, of the City Code. He was released under $25 bond pending a hearing Nov. 7.

Yesterday, the same charge against Mrs. Sol Gross, 247 Henderson avenue, was dismissed in police court when she promised to have the work done to her property at 408-10-12-14 North Mechanic street.

The hearings of Mrs. George Everstine, 604 North Mechanic street, Fred and George Hievers, 248 North Mechanic street, and Joseph H. Reinhardt, 17 Baltimore street, were continued until Nov. 4.

Walter E. Kline, sanitary inspector for the City Health Department, preferred the charges.

Junior Boys and Girls Have Party at Y.M.C.A.

A gala Hallowe'en costume party was held last night, in the Central Y. M. C. A. gymnasium, by the Junior Boys and Girls Department of the "Y."

Jack Platt directed an entertainment program which included several dancing numbers by Billy and Jimmy Chambers, who recently won their way to the finals of the New York World's fair dancing contest.

Freda Thompson sang and danced. Marshall Sowers played two violin solos. Harry Kompanek sang several numbers and a trio of girls of Allegheny high school presented several vocal selections.

In addition to the entertainment the boys and girls played games and danced.

Prizes for costumes were won by Fred Bennett, who masqueraded as a girl; Frank Morris, funniest costume; Eddie Wagner, cutest costume; Yates Borden, posing as an immigrant; Charles Bucy, as a Dutch Girl; Patty Stegmaler, prettiest costume.

Grant Howser and Fannon Webber won a prize for the best old couple; Freddie Small, as a tramp; James Miller, a mountaineer; Betty Thomas, as Popeye; Gerry Smith, best clown; Virginia Thompson, best cowgirl; Betty McLaughlin and Dorothy Shuck, as an old witch; and Carrol Borden, as a cat.

Miss Mary Lou Collins Called for Active Duty With Army Nursing Corps

Miss Mary Lou Collins, supervisor of pediatrics at Memorial hospital, has been called for active duty with the United States Army Nursing Corps.

Miss Collins will report to Walter Reed hospital, Washington, D. C., about November 15. She will leave as soon as her position can be filled at Memorial hospital.

A native of Roanoke, Va., Miss Collins graduated from Lewis-Gale hospital, Roanoke, in the class of 1931. She also did post graduate work at Memorial hospital, Morristown, N. J.

Girls Central Alumnae Opens Forum and Lecture Season at Meeting

The Girls Central High School Alumnae Association opened its third season of forum and lecture programs, Tuesday night, at a dinner meeting in the ball room of the Fort Cumberland hotel.

Miss Mary Murray, president of the group, announced the topic "Attitudes" and outlined the program for the year. This program, based on the study of attitudes, is to be followed in the way of an open forum under the guidance of the moderator.

Services will also be held each evening through Friday at 7:30 p. m. Some of the subjects to be studied will be in relation to Daniel including: "The Revival of the Roman Empire," "The Rule of the anti-Christ," "The Seventy Weeks of Daniel," illustrated by a large colored chart.

Bible Conference Is Now in Progress
"The Great White Throne" will be the sermon subject, this morning at 10:30 o'clock at the Calvary Tabernacle, Cresskill, as part of the October Bible Conference now in progress.

Services will also be held each evening through Friday at 7:30 p. m. Some of the subjects to be studied will be in relation to Daniel including: "The Revival of the Roman Empire," "The Rule of the anti-Christ," "The Seventy Weeks of Daniel," illustrated by a large colored chart.

Dutch Elm Disease Disappears Here, Survey Reveals

No recurrence of Dutch elm disease has been found in Cumberland this year, according to announcement made by the Department of Agriculture. Last year's survey by the department showed one diseased tree here.

It is reported that a marked decrease in Dutch elm disease was found in all of the infected areas with the exception of a few places in New York and Pennsylvania just beyond the main zone of infection, which covers about 5,000 square miles in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York and Connecticut.

Cooper Rites Held

Services for Mrs. Irene Cooper, 66, colored, wife of William Cooper, 529 North Centre street, who died Sunday, were conducted yesterday afternoon at St. Philip's Episcopal church. The Rev. David C. Clark, pastor of Emmanuel Episcopal church, officiated.

Burial was made in Woodlawn Burial Park.

Pallbearers were Halvin L. Edwards, John E. Trimble, Bernard F. Myers, John Temple, Charles Montgomery and Spurgeon B. Washington.

But it didn't, and everything was fine.

Real Swell Folks
"I wish I could stay here and talk to you all afternoon on this beautiful day," Mr. Wilkie beamed. "I feel as good as the day. As a matter of fact I never felt better in my life. My voice cracks once in a while. But I must remind you that the Liberty Bell cracked too. But I am going to keep right on ringing it right up to election night." As their train pulled out for Baltimore, everybody, in waving goodbye, must have said to themselves: "There goes a couple of real swell folks."

Supporting Wilkie for president will be interested in an announcement by Robert Lacy, chairman, and Hiram Woods Woodward, secretary, of the Maryland Engineers for Wilkie.

Lacy and Woodward yesterday released the first results of the poll of some 4,000 Maryland engineers being conducted by them.

Results from more than 600 ballots received through Oct. 29 indicate that eighty-five per cent of Maryland engineers are for Wilkie and less than fifteen per cent for Roosevelt. Attention is called to the fact that the announced percentage has varied but slightly since the ballots first started to come in.

It was also announced that approximately one-third of those in favor of Mr. Wilkie's election forwarded contributions, notwithstanding the fact that all engineers on government work are barred from contributing.

Contributions from 50 cents to $5 were suggested to those engineers who desired to contribute and were free to do so. Those who were prohibited by the Hatch act or other election laws were advised in a notation that "no contributions will be accepted from officers or employees of, or persons receiving or entitled to receive compensation for services, or salary from the United States Government."

While prior to the formation of the organization it was generally known that sentiment among Maryland engineers was predominantly in favor of the election of a candidate who would encourage the productive forces of the nation, the response has been an even higher percentage than was expected.

Smith's two-year commission as a member of the State Game and Inland Fish commission will expire in June, 1941. James H. Gambrell Jr., of Frederick county, was re-appointed to a five-year term on the commission upon completion of a one-year term last summer.

Other members of the commission are Garner Wood Denmead, chairman, A. Gordon Fleet and S. Scott Beck Jr.

Dr. J. E. McLean Move Offices to New Location
Dr. James E. McLean announced last night that he is moving his medical offices from 122 Bedford street to a new location at 49 Greene street, where he will be established on the first floor.

Hats Mrs. Wilkie

yesterday at the Queen City Station, almost but not quite. That was because she refused to monopolize the limelight. Her two appearances were brief and each one was a minor triumph.

She certainly looked nice—with her soft blue sports dress and absolutely perfect blue hat, just jaunty enough but not too jaunty, matching her blue eyes that crinkle at the corners when she laughs.

She had Mr. Wilkie dressed nicely, too. He had on a pin-striped steel-blue suit with a blue tie that was probably picked out by Mrs. Wilkie. However, his hair was that way as usual. He also had a soup stain on his vest. It must be a hard job to keep a guy like that dressed right.

Wilkie Good Campaigner

But what a personality that big Hoosier has when he turns it on. And what a tremendous amount of vitality he must have. Only his vocal organs are showing the strain of one of the most grueling stumping tours in history.

His voice rasped when he started to speak yesterday. It probably hurt his throat. Nevertheless, his voice improved as he continued to talk. And pretty soon nobody noticed the throatiness of his speech anyway.

The Wilkies were blessed with a real nice October day for their Cumberland visit. It certainly looked like gray skies and a cold drizzle the night before. The weather man had predicted rain.

But it didn't, and everything was fine.

Willkie Urges Unification of Labor and Industry

Huge Hallowe'en Parade Takes Place Tonight On Cumberland Streets

Sally Rand and Twenty Girls of Her Show Will Lead Long Line of Marchers

Drum and Bugle Corps, Fire Companies and Fraternal Organizations Will Participate

A huge Hallowe'en parade tonight at 7:30 o'clock will be the main feature of the annual autumn holiday in Cumberland. With Sally Rand, of fan dancing fame, and twenty beautiful showgirls leading the parade, a huge crowd is expected to pack the line of march.

Miss Rand is in Cumberland with her troupe for a stage appearance at the Strand theater Friday and Saturday.

Many musical organizations, fraternal organizations, drum and bugle corps and other marchers are scheduled to participate, and the parade will be the largest held here in several years.

Parade Starts at 7:30

All adult musical organizations, fire companies, and fraternal marching bodies will assemble on Seymour street, facing Fifth street, at 7 p. m. ready to march at 7:30 p. m.

The line of march will be from Fifth street to Virginia avenue, to Oldtown road, to Winnow street, to Williams street, to Centre street, to Market street, to Mechanic street, to Baltimore street, to George street, to Williams street, to Centre street and disband at the State Armory.

The numbers will form on Commerce street and enter the parade at Center and Williams street.

Ten Divisions Listed

The formation will include: First division, led by the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Drum and Bugle Corps, followed by the Westernport Fire Department, Redwood Lodge in uniform and 100 marchers.

The Barton city band will lead the second division, followed by the Woodmen of the World in uniform, Creashtown fire department and 100 marchers.

The third division includes the Piedmont American Legion Drum Corps, Piedmont Knights of Pythias Uniform Band, Tri-Town fire company and 100 marchers.

The Windber, Pa. Drum and Bugle Corps will head the fourth division, Knights of Malta, Midland fire company, and 100 marchers will complete this group.

The fifth division will comprise the Lonsconing city band, L.O.O.F. Uniform Band, LaVale fire company and 100 marchers.

Division Six will be led by Fort Cumberland Post 13, American Legion Band, Deep Creek fire company, Klein's pony show, a float from Frederick street school, and 100 marchers.

The seventh division will be made up of Fort Hill high school band and many marchers.

Division Eight will include the Moose band and marchers.

Allegany high school band and marchers will make up the ninth division.

The last and Tenth division will be led by the Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, Sons of Legionnaires and include marchers.

Regulations Announced

Regulations as to awards for drum and bugle corps, twenty points for attack; twenty points for marching; twenty points for uniforms; twenty points for alignment; twenty points for music, complete march to Armory.

Regulations as to awards for bands: fifty points for music; fifteen points for marching; twenty-five points for appearance; ten points for alignment, complete march to Armory.

The reviewing stand will be in front of the Second National Bank building.

The judging area will be on Baltimore street from Mechanic to George street. All participants to be eligible for prizes must complete the march. There will be checkers to list those in the line of march, one at Baltimore and Centre streets, one at the City Hall, one at Market street, one at the Southern hotel on Mechanic street, and one at Guley's Garage on George street. These men will verify the winners who have completed the march.

There will be a hill-billy band contest at the Armory immediately following the parade. Cash prizes will be awarded.

Prizes for Marchers

The prizes will be awarded for senior drum corps, first $75, second $50; senior bands, first $75 and second $40; Junior drum corps, first $25 and second $15; Junior and high school bands, first $40 and second $20; drill teams, first $25; no prize for second.

A $25 prize will be given to the fire company with the most men in the fire companies may compete.

Mayor and Council To Attend Meeting On Airport Plans

Conference with CAA Official, Scheduled for Harrisburg Today

C. A. Wesol, of the Civil Aeronautics Authority, phoned Mayor Harry Irvine from Harrisburg, Pa., yesterday, requesting a conference with the mayor and members of the council and as many members of the airport committee as possible.

The conference will be held in Harrisburg today and indications were that important developments are in the making.

Mayor Irvine stated yesterday that as far as he knows four cars will make the trip, leaving here at 7 a. m. today. In addition to the mayor and council members, Charles Z. Heskett, city attorney, Arthur Gibson, city auditor, Ralph L. Rizer, city engineer, and James C. Shriver, Arthur Weber and Oscar Gurley, of the Chamber of Commerce Airport committee, will make the trip.

The mayor expressed the hope that the conference will result in Cumberland's airport project being started soon.

Mayor Irvine Is Real Happy on His Birthday

Celebrates Anniversary by Welcoming Willkie to Cumberland

Mayor Harry Irvine celebrated his sixty-eighth birthday yesterday by welcoming Wendell L. Willkie, Republican nominee for president, to Cumberland.

Just before he left for the train to greet Willkie Mayor Irvine was presented a huge bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums and carnations by city hall employees.

The mayor was bubbling over, not because it was his birthday but also because he had welcomed to Cumberland, Wendell Willkie, whom he admires greatly.

Mayor Irvine said afterwards that the reception tendered Mr. Willkie was the greatest demonstration ever given to a noted person in Cumberland. He praised the work of the B. & O. police, state police, city officers, sheriff's deputies, the American Legion and Boy Scouts for the manner in which they handled the crowd.

All in all, the mayor was a happy man yesterday.

Local 1874 Will Support Roosevelt

Speech of Lewis Will Not Change Its Stand, Members Say

John L. Lewis' endorsement of Wendell L. Willkie did not even make a dent in the solidarity of Western Maryland labor as far as its stand for President Roosevelt is concerned, officials of Local 1874, TWUA, declared last night.

That Local 1874 hasn't the slightest intention of stringing along with the CIO chieftain who has staked his job on Willkie's election, was made unmistakably clear when the general committee of the union reaffirmed its stand for President Roosevelt.

Committee members also sanctioned a reply repudiating Lewis' endorsement address which will be broadcast here tonight.

James A. Dandon, textile union president, was authorized to make the reply for labor in a radio address from 6:45 to 7 o'clock this evening.

Committee members said that in their estimation Lewis' address helped Roosevelt rather than harmed him in Western Maryland. Both the textile union and the rubber workers' union reaffirmed their stand for Roosevelt following the address of the CIO chief.

Christian Service Group Will Meet Friday

A district meeting of the Women's Society of Christian Service of Grace Methodist church will be held tomorrow at Hancock.

Mrs. R. L. Neil was a guest speaker at the society's meeting Tuesday night. Mrs. Clara LeFevre presided and Mrs. Harvey Shockley was in charge of the devotional.

"BIG TRAIN" INTRODUCES WILLKIE—Walter Johnson and Wendell L. Willkie are both big, husky men who have what has been described as a "touch of earth" in their makeups. Johnson climbed aboard the Willkie Special yesterday to introduce a man who has always admired him tremendously. For Willkie, probably one of the best-informed men in America, finds time to keep up with the American League as well as everything else. Willkie, hands in pockets, smiled as Johnson made what was probably one of the shortest introductory speeches on record. The man on the right is Lewis M. Wilson, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee of Allegany county.

TRIPLETS MEET MRS. WILLKIE—Mrs. Wendell L. Willkie was delighted yesterday afternoon when Wilma Rae, Wilda Rita and Willa Royce Smith were brought up on the rear platform of the Willkie Special to present her a big bouquet. Mrs. Willkie, who misses nothing that goes on, expressed concern when two of the triplets started to cry. All the people, all the noise and all the flashlight bulbs popping in their faces quite overpowered the little girls.

Text of Address Delivered Here by Wendell L. Willkie

The text of the address delivered here yesterday by Wendell L. Willkie, Republican presidential nominee, from the rear platform of the "Willkie Special", which was heard by a crowd estimated at between 10,000 and 12,000 persons, follows:

"People of Maryland. This is my first political speech in the seat of Maryland, and I am happy to be here. It is a delight to me to be received by so many thousands of people in this great state of Maryland.

"You may readily understand my pleasure in being introduced by Walter Johnson. When I was a young fellow working my way through college, I went out to Coffeyville, Kansas, to teach at the high school there, back in 1913. Walter Johnson grew up as a boy on a farm near Coffeyville and he was my boyhood hero then, and may I say of him, I have followed his career ever since, and he is still my hero.

"If there is anybody in this district who intends to vote for me I shall appreciate it very much if you will also vote for Walter. As a matter of fact, I know of no finer thing that could be done than to send this man to congress as a proof to the young men of this country that the kind of clean sportsmanship that he represents is recognized by the American electorate.

"I listened to a very interesting talk last night over the radio by the ambassador of the United States to the Court of St. James. In that speech, which was of course a political speech, the ambassador said that we in effect, have no domestic issues in this campaign, that all that is involved in this campaign is what is happening abroad.

"Let me say to you that I disagree with that and if you elect me president of the United States, although I fully appreciate the problems across the seas, I shall still cast my eye inland to the great American people and think in terms of what is best for them.

"We have had an administration (Continued on Page Eleven)

"So far as the conductor of Gateway Chatter could tell, the thousands of persons who gathered at the Queen City station here yesterday afternoon to greet Wendell L. Willkie, Republican nominee for president, regardless of party lines were impressed with the sincerity of the GOP standard bearer.

"Willkie's address was well received, and despite predictions by some persons early in the week, there was no egg-throwing or any incident which would only have put a black mark against the fair city of Cumberland.

"Mr. and Mrs. Willkie were given a wonderful reception and the large crowd listened attentively to every word the candidate spoke. The exact number, of course, will never be known, but conservative estimates placed the crowd at between 10,000 and 12,000 persons which is a great turnout in mid-afternoon for a city the size of Cumberland.

Mrs. Willkie received a great ovation when she was introduced and presented a huge bouquet by the Smith triplets just before the train pulled out. It was easy to see that she is a gracious lady and why she has captivated the hearts of the people of America.

It is a safe bet that if her husband is elected president she will be one of the most popular First Ladies in the history of the nation.

Cumberland's police department, the state police, the sheriff and his deputies, B. & O. police, Boy Scouts and Legionnaires who policed the crowd did a commendable job. Even the weather man seemed to rejoice in Willkie's coming to Cumberland as what earlier in the day appeared to be a wet cloudy day turned out to be a beautiful clear afternoon.

GOP Presidential Nominee Pleads For Unity of American People in Address Delivered from His Train

Louis Winfield Of Cumberland Dies in Crash

Local Truck Driver Is Killed Instantly Near Romney, W. Va.

Louis Joseph Winfield, 36, of 414 South Cedar street, was instantly killed Tuesday at 10:30 p. m. when the truck he was driving careened from U. S. Route 50, several miles west of Romney, W. Va., and crashed against a wall.

Winfield, driver for J. I. Mattingly and Brother, 212 Glenn street, distributors, reportedly left the road to avoid a collision. The bern was soft and the ton and one-half truck overturned, hitting the wall.

His head was smashed against the wall.

Winfield, who was employed by the Mattingly concern for twenty years, was traveling east when the accident occurred. The truck was badly damaged.

Born in Cumberland, he was a son of Mrs. Anna Hensler Winfield and the late George Winfield. He was a member of Cumberland Aerie No. 245, Fraternal Order of Eagles, and the Moose lodge at Moorefield, W. Va.

Surviving, besides his mother, are his wife, Mrs. Bertha Sherman Winfield; two brothers, Henry and Carl A. Winfield, of Cumberland; and two sisters, Mrs. Anna Hager, this city, and Mrs. Regina Kline, of Cleveland, O.

Fort Hill Band Plays At Student's Party In School Gymnasium

The Fort Hill high school students held a concert last night at the school gymnasium during the Hallowe'en party.

The concert was one of many events at the party which was arranged by Milton A. Holtz, band director, to raise money for the purchase of equipment.

The band gave the following selections: "God Bless America," "Military Escort," "Will You Remember," "Teamwork," "Band Boys," and "Nitty."

Prizes were given to the winners of the various contests such as cake walks, costume competition and grab bag stunts.

The Blue and White band furnished music for the dancing.

Representative Byron Speaks in Cresaptown

Representative William D. Byron spoke at a Hallowe'en party in his honor Tuesday night at Cresaptown upon the invitation of the Women's Auxiliary of the Cresaptown Volunteer Fire Department.

Byron, speaking informally, acquainted his audience with the nature of his various duties in Washington.

He was given a cordial reception by club members and guests and was introduced by Mrs. Breedlove, president of the auxiliary.

In welcoming Byron, Mrs. Breedlove stated that he was the first and only candidate who had seen fit to speak before the voters in that section during this campaign.

Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the speaking program.

Personal Items

Miss Mary Burdock, Cleveland, O. enroute from the New York World's fair visited her sister, Mrs. Louis Lebeck, this city.

Barton Woman Gives Interesting Picture of Mrs. Wendell Willkie

Says She Is "Utterly Feminine", and a Gracious, Lovely Lady

Mrs. Wendell L. Willkie is "utterly feminine."

So declared Mrs. Lulu W. Boucher, of Barton, member of the Maryland House of Delegates, in a public address over Radio Station WTBO last evening.

An interesting and intimate picture of the prospective First Lady of the Land was given by the speaker as the result of personal contact with her yesterday afternoon at the Queen City station.

As Mrs. Willkie is now one of the most talked about women in America today, Mrs. Boucher said thousands who will vote for her husband are asking "What is his wife like?"

TO SING HERE—Leonard Warren, American baritone of the Metropolitan Opera Association, will be heard here tomorrow at 8:30 p. m. at Allegany high school, in the first concert of the season. Warren is a winner of the Metropolitan Auditions of the Air and has successfully won the acclaim of the public and the press.

Leonard Warren To Give Concert Here on Friday

Will Sing under Auspices of Cumberland Concert Association

Membership cards for the sixth season of the Cumberland Co-operative Concert Association were mailed yesterday, according to officers of the association. The cards may be used for all of the Cumberland concerts, the first of which is Friday at Allegany high school, as well as for any Co-operative concert in any city offering the course.

Leonard Warren, American baritone of the Metropolitan Opera Association will be in Cumberland Friday at 8:30 p. m. as the first concert of the season. Other attractions include Emile Baume, Pianist, and Carola Goya, Spanish dancer, accompanied by Beatrice Burford, harpist.

In the short time Warren has been recognized by both the critics and the public, he has established himself as an outstanding American baritone. Before his sudden rise to recognition he was a member of the Radio City Glee club but he wanted solo parts. When he pleaded with an official for the opportunity he was told that first he must make a name for himself. So he resigned from the group and studied more intently before qualifying for the Metropolitan Auditions of the Air. From more than 700 young singers Warren was chosen for a Metropolitan debut.

His debut aroused such a clamor for the young singer that he was immediately given leading roles with the Metropolitan.

He has also appeared on many radio programs as well as on the concert stage throughout the nation.

Three Local Youths Are Held For Grand Jury

Charged with Committing Series of Robberies in Recent Months

Three Cumberland youths were ordered held under $1,000 bond each to await action of the January grand jury when arraigned yesterday in trial magistrates court on charges of committing a series of robberies here in recent months.

Charles F. Stiner and Donald William Kaibach were released after bond was posted before Magistrate Frank A. Perdew. Carl G. Scharf was committed to the county jail in default of surety.

A fourth youth, James Donald Kenney, was held in the county jail pending prosecution by West Virginia authorities. He is accused of driving the other three to Keyser, W. Va., last Dec. 10 when the Needle jewelry store was robbed of articles valued at $600.

State's Attorney Morgan C. Harris said the youths, all over sixteen years old, admitted the charges. Stiner, Kaibach and Scharf also confessed to robbing a number of homes and business places, he said.

Would Build Defense System So Strong That No Dictator Would Ever Strike This Nation

Says First Undertaking He Elected Will Be To Put Men Back to Work at American Wages

The unification of labor, industry and agriculture was the keynote of the address made yesterday at the Queen City station by Wendell L. Willkie, Republican presidential nominee, who outlined a threefold program before a crowd estimated at between ten and twelve thousand people.

"In the first place," the Republican presidential nominee said, "I want to make America strong in its domestic economy so that it is vibrant and vital and providing jobs for all of our people."

Newspaper Writers See Election of Willkie

Local newspapermen contacting those on the Willkie special train here yesterday obtained the information that the newspaper correspondents aboard had come to the conclusion that Willkie would surely be elected. Their conviction was said to have been based upon reports received during the last few days from all parts of the country.

The conclusion was purely personal opinion, it was stated, and was not for use in any news report.

"I want to build a defense system so strong that no dictator will ever seek to strike this great, free land of ours."

Wants Unity in America

"Then, over and above that, I want to unite the American people. I stand before you in 1940 as the only candidate for president of the United States who has the confidence of labor, the confidence of industry and the confidence of agriculture."

"And if you elect me president of the United States, with the help of fine fellows like Walter Johnson, we shall bring those three elements of the American population together in a great co-operative effort, a great effort toward unity to build this nation strong and keep it free."

Willkie paid a glowing tribute to Walter Johnson, declaring "I know of no finer thing that could be done than to send this man to Congress as a proof to the young men of this country that the kind of clean sportsmanship he represents is recognized by the American electorate."

Raps Kennedy's Statement

The candidate slapped at the statement made by Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy Tuesday night, referring specifically to Kennedy's statement that there is no domestic issue in this campaign and that all that is involved is what is happening abroad.

"Let me say to you that I disagree with that," Willkie said, "and if you elect me president of the United States, although I fully appreciate the problems across the seas, I shall still cast my eye inland to the great American people and think in terms of what is best for them."

"My first undertaking," Willkie declared, "will be to put American men back to work at American wages."

For seven-and-a-half years we have had preached to be people of America that "this great free land of ours has reached the end of its development and the end of its achievement," Willkie said.

Need Friendly Government

"Let me say to you that we have not even yet touched the borders of our achievement. The possibilities of development by chemistry, by science and by engineering, if the energies of the people are but loosened by the government, by a friendly government towards American enterprise, America will begin to expand and grow, so that there will be jobs for all Americans at higher wages and a constantly rising standard of living."

The streamlined Willkie Special arrived at 3 o'clock. Members of the crowd, many of whom had been waiting in line for over an hour, cheered as the fifteen-car train came to a halt. The second, the train stopped, thousands of people surged in around the rear platform like a wave.

A few seconds later, Mrs. Willkie appeared on the rear platform, smiled and waved to the cheering thousands. A number of corsages and boxes of flowers were handed up to her.

Trin and jaunty in a powder blue outfit with hat to match, the candidate's wife smiled delightfully when the three Smith triplets were brought to the rear platform to present the official welcoming (Continued on Page Eleven)
